Hancock Water/Sewer collects on more than $66K in past-due bills

BY BENNIE SHALLBETTER
Staff Writer

Customers of the Hancock County Water and Sewer District will not have to face rate hikes in the foreseeable future, though for a while the district was considering the possibility - largely due to the large percentage of delinquent accounts, said Commissioner Al Smith.

Six weeks ago, the district took over the job of overseeing its own collections. Since that time, $66,063 in back bills have been collected and another $64,960 in court judgments or pay arrangements have also been made.

Just six weeks ago, the district was owed $139,132 for delinquent bills. Since then, even with payments picking up, another

Amber Alert now in effect in Hancock

BY ELLIS C. CUEVAS
Publisher Emeritus

Hancock County Sheriff's Chief of Patrol Bobby Underwood attended a Department of Public Safety Amber Alert System seminar in Jackson Wednesday, giving details and procedures in making reports to state police, Sheriff Steve Garber reports.

Mississippi Amber Alert System will utilize existing emergency resources to help reunite abducted children with their families. It is in conjunction with the Nation's Amber Alert Program, Garber said.

Underwood said the seminar was conducted by Warren Strain, director of Public Affairs, Mississippi Department of Public Safety.

On Friday Strain reported the Department of Public Safety was in the process of preparing public service announcements to be published and aired for the general public.

Underwood indicated that the program is designed for all law enforcement agencies across the state, even though, "I was the only one there from the Coastal area." Another session is to be held at a later date, he did say.

The Amber Alert System is strictly for cases where a child has been abducted by someone who is not a family member and not for run-arounds or parental custody disputes, Garber reported.

Currently there are 30 other states with statewide Amber Alert Systems in addition to Mississippi.

The National Center for Mississippi and Exploited Children reports that there are between 3,000 and 4,500 non-family abductions each year, of these between 200 and 300 are "classic" kidnappings. Approximately 150 abducted children are discovered murdered in the United States each year.

Statistics also show that 58% of the victims were within three blocks of their home.

Among the discussions included an State Amber Alert Reporting Form which will be issued to each law enforcement agency in the state.

A "hotline" has been established and in the event of an Amber Alert activation, the toll-free telephone number will be made public and other instructions will be issued in the event of a sighting.

Underwood said, "If a child is abducted and is in imminent danger and classed as an Amber Alert, broadcasts via radio, television and other communications will be announced every 30 minutes for two hours, then once an hour the next three hours. If during the process vital information is received the cycle will be repeated."

"During an Amber Alert, general public input is very important," Underwood emphasized.

In Mississippi the Amber Alert System children are includes children through age 17. The age could be older if there is a mental of physical handicap, Underwood reported.

"Time is of the essence in a child abduction case," said Jim Boxx, Director of Mississippi Highway Patrol's Criminal Investigation Bureau. "In nearly three-fourths of the abduction cases in which a child is killed, the murder occurs with three hours of the abduction," Boxx said in a news release.

The Amber Alert Initial Reporting Form, which will be forwarded to the Mississippi Highway Safety Patrol by a sheriff/police chief or authorized agency commander, contains very important information to be supplied about the subject. Such as; personal information, location, clothing, age, description of vehicle, exact time, etc.

"All of these are very important for law enforcement, as well as for the general public in case a sighting is made," Underwood said.

Tuesday is Fibromyalgia Awareness Day

Although an estimated 10 million men, women and children of all ages in the United States suffer from Fibromyalgia, little is known about this mysterious disorder.

Its symptoms include overall joint and muscle pain, sleep deprivation, chronic fatigue, irritable bowel syndrome and depression. It can be so debilitating that some people cannot maintain gainful employment or normal social activities.

The cause for the disorder is unknown. As of now, there is no cure.

Because there is no simple test to diagnose Fibromyalgia, many sufferers go undiagnosed and untreated for years.

In Hancock County, both the Board of Supervisors and Waveland Mayor John T. Longo has issued proclamations designating May 12 as Fibromyalgia Awareness Day.

Since 1992, fibromyalgia Awareness Day activities have taken place worldwide to increase awareness of the disorder.

The May 12 date was chosen to honor the birthday of Florence Nightingale, the English army nurse who pioneered the Red Cross movement. Nightingale herself was virtually bedridden with an illness resembling fibromyalgia.

Open Letter to The Citizens of Hancock County and Surrounding Areas

Re: Gulf South Urgent Care

Dear Friends, Patients and Citizens:

In late March of this year, I was diagnosed with a rare form of cancer and have been on medical leave from our clinic since that date. I have been treated at Hancock Medical Center and am currently being treated at MD Anderson Cancer Center in Houston, Texas. I will be receiving therapy there for at least two more months.

One of my greatest concerns is for us to continue providing our urgent care services at Gulf South Urgent Care. I hope each of you who is familiar with our clinic shares my feeling. We sincerely believe that we have made a positive contribution to the healthcare of the community since we opened in 1996. While we have not been able to have a physician every day since the onset of my illness, we have had physicians at the clinic over half of the time I have been out and we continue to explore options to return to our regular schedule in the near future. We apologize for the inconvenience and thank you for your consideration during this trying time.

On my return from Houston on May 3rd, I learned that many candles had been lit on my behalf at the Cancer Walk. My wife Leticia, my son John Michael and I have also received many cards and letters from supporters that have touched our hearts through expressions of support, sympathy and hope. We are unable to express how powerfully this outpouring of love has affected us.

The local medical community has been so kind in assisting the staff of Gulf South Urgent Care and the physicians who have been substituting for me while I have been out, I want to offer them my special thanks. Through their efforts care has been given to most patients who I had been treating prior to my illness. It is a wonderful feeling to be part of such a fine medical community.

In closing, thank you all for your prayers and concern.

Sincerely,

Joseph G. Stribling, MD

Cuevas' Quotes

by Ellis C. Cuevas
Publisher Emeritus

Important conference set next week in BSL

This week a very important three-day conference will be taking place at Casino Magic in Bay St. Louis.

It is the 4th Annual Coastal Development Strategies Conference which will be held Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

The Comprehensive Resources Management Plan (CRMP) is hosting the event in association with CRMP stakeholders. CRMP is a program within the Mississippi Department of Marine Resources.

The conference's main topics will be on how the area can thrive economically while protecting the coastal resources that are important to our area.

The regional conference is designed for landowners, developers, boards of supervisors, mayors, city council members, lawyers, planners, landscape designers, federal agencies, state agencies local and county governments, private and corporate entities, home sellers, home buyers and concerned citizens. It appears the conference is for is important and should be of interest to all residents.

A couple words of importance which have been around in recent years is "Smart Growth," and this is really a Smart Growth conference.

Among the topics to be discussed by local and national experts include: restoration of the Hancock County Marsh Coastal Preserve and Hancock County Greenways Project, something which has been in the works for several years.

On Monday things begin to warm up with the Vendors setting up beginning at 10 a.m. and a noon Golf tournament at the Bridges and a reception at 5 p.m.

Tuesday morning there will be an 8 a.m. Continental Breakfast and Registration. Followed by Welcoming ceremonies which include Bay St. Louis Mayor Eddie Favre and Hancock County Board of Supervisors President Rocky Pullman.

Throughout Tuesday and Wednesday there will be very important sessions on items of all concerns.

If you are interested, you may want to give the Department of Marine Resources as call at 228-374-5000. Cost of the conference is $125 ($75 for students). The conference adjourns at 3 p.m. on Wednesday.

I cannot recall our area have as many consecutive windy days as we had this past week.

Usually we will have strong winds for a day or two, but not five or six days in a row.

During this period much of the central sections of our country have been struck with numerous tornados. Many have died and damages have been in millions and millions.

I know many folks say they would never live in a coastal area because of hurricanes, but at least we receive enough advanced notice to leave the area if we want too.

With tornados there is usually very little warning in most cases. Folks around Tennessee have been hit hard too by heavy rains.

The Hammer and the Nail

Saying that tax cuts cannot drive our economy forward is like saying a hammer can't drive a nail - it just isn't so.

Hammers have been used for thousands of years to drive nails - overall a tested and true tool. Tax cuts are similar - a tested tool to spur economic growth. Liberals though are telling us once again that tax relief and incentives cannot drive the economy, even though tax incentives have pushed economic growth and job creation time and time again, much like a hammer pounding a nail.

For those lagging souls

From the Senate

By U.S. Sen. Trent Lott

who still think tax incentives and tax relief cannot trigger job creation and economic growth, I have one word: Nissan.

Next month I will join state leaders and officials of Nissan Motor Company for the grand opening of a $1.5 billion automotive manufacturing facility in Canton, an investment in our state partly lured by using federal and state tax incentives that proved very attractive to this company.

I remember flying to Los Angeles in 1999 to meet with Nissan's dynamic new leadership, in hopes of convincing them to pick Mississippi as their next plant site. At that time Nissan was a company rebounding with a vengeance. They wanted to create a new plant in an promising locale with a fair tax structure and compatible labor force to support Nissan's future growth.

This company was not looking at Mississippi through a prism of the past.

They saw, and still see, a state on the move, a state where they will be appreciated and supported not only by a good work force, but also by federal officials and local leaders willing to restrain the tax burden. Today 6,000 new automotive jobs are coming to our state, and tens of thousands more jobs at Nissan suppliers - all due in a large way to tax incentives.

There is little doubt that Mississippi's economic future and our ability to lure more high wage Nissan-style jobs will depend heavily on our willingness to minimize the tax burden on small business, large business and individual taxpayers.

Likewise, our national economy's health will also depend on keeping taxes at a minimum.

Each day, jobs are created or destroyed due to good or bad tax policy. Somewhere, someone is cutting taxes, and some small business has more money and hires someone else. Somewhere, someone is raising taxes, and some bureaucrat has more money at his disposal, and no new jobs are created, except maybe in the government.

IN CONGRESS

By Representative
Gene Taylor

One of the great privileges I have as a United States Congressman is that every year I get to make appointments to our nation's service academies.

This honor allows me to ensure that the best and the brightest from South Mississippi have their chance to get the best education in the world.

The young men and woman who attend the academies are the future leaders of our nation's defense. Their expectations of themselves will reach new heights as they confront the rigorous academic and physical demands placed on them.

There are five service academies in all. The Naval Academy is in Annapolis, Maryland. The Military Academy is in West Point, New York. The Air Force Academy is near Colorado Springs, Colorado.

The Merchant Marine Academy is in Kings Point, New York. The Coast Guard Academy is in New London, Connecticut. These academies are steeped in the traditions of American military excellence.

They are highly selective and offer an education unmatched by any other institutions in the world. The skills and values that are passed on in these schools will serve for the betterment of the student and the country.

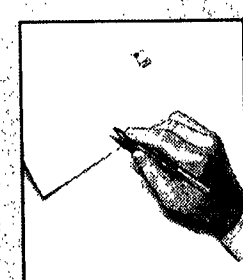

I am proud to say that this year there were twelve young people who received a combined fourteen appointments to academies. These appointees should be commended for their efforts over the last several years. They are in the top of their classes and are active in many clubs and organizations. It is an honor to receive an appointment to a military academy and I am proud to present the twelve south Mississippians of 2003 who can boast such an accomplishment.

Each Congressman is only supposed to get two appointments per academy. Thanks to the efforts of Mrs. Jerry Martin in my Hattiesburg office, I am often able to make three or four appointments per academy. If an appointment in another congressional district is not used, Mrs. Martin makes sure we can fill that spot. She has been working with me since day one and is the best source of information when it comes to questions about the service academies.

Every fall, usually in October, Mrs. Martin organizes an Academy Day at USM in Hattiesburg. Academy admissions officers, cadets, and graduates, come to talk to interested students and answer any questions they have. I encourage any high school student in South Mississippi to attend this function if they are considering an academy as an option. If anyone would like to know more about these institutions, you may contact Mrs. Martin at (601) 582-3246. Each academy also has their own web site that is an excellent source of information.

If you know any of the young people mentioned above, please offer them your congratulations. Their hard work and dedication will allow them to fulfill a dream and carry on a great tradition of service to their country.

Lott

Higher taxes deter businesses activity, stunt job growth, and even drive individual residents away from localities that tax heavily. Lower taxes attract business, promote growth and attract new residents and workers.

So, when you look at the companies that provide jobs in Mississippi, which would you rather have: a few new government jobs in Washington or Jackson, or new jobs at Nissan, Howard Industries, Ingalls Shipbuilding, Viking Range, Yates Construction, Peavey Electronics or at Mr. Smith's hardware store down the street?

The answer is clear; businesses and consumers are the backbone of our economy. They, not government, create real jobs, and the best way to get businesses - small or large - to create more jobs is by allowing them to keep more of their own money, which is exactly what

President Bush wants to do. The President's jobs and economic growth plan of $726 billion would create 1.4 million new jobs by the end of 2004, according to the Council of Economic Advisers. The impact of the President's growth plan on job creation would occur quickly; in fact, 510,000 new jobs would be created this year, and another 891,000 new jobs would be created by the end of 2004.

The President's tax relief and growth plan is predicated on the tried and true axiom for spurring economic growth: tax relief works. When businesses and individual taxpayers are allowed to keep more of their money through tax relief, our economy benefits.

There is more money circulating. You have more to spend. Businesses in turn make more profit when you buy. They grow faster, create more jobs or build new factories, as we are seeing in Mississippi with the Nissan investment. So, when choosing between tax relief for working Americans and businesses, or keeping money in the hands of government, this choice should be a no brainer. Tax relief is a proven tool for driving our economy. Like hammer and nail, tax policies and economic activity are forever linked.

Artist designs Olde Towne Players logo

Olde Towne Players, the Coast's newest community theater company has chosen renowned Coast artist John D. McDonald's design as its official logo.

Olde Towne Players' founders choose McDonald's logo because it clearly represents live theater, but also included other arts in its design. The company plans to incorporate various arts - music, dance and visual arts - in its theatrical productions.

McDonald, a Bay St. Louis resident who studied art at Yale University, is particularly noted both for his landscapes and his portraits. His paintings are exhibited in various galleries and private collections throughout the United States. His historical artwork, "The Promenaded Mural" is painted on a wall on Main Street in Bay St. Louis.

Other artists who submitted entries to Olde Towne Players' logo contest include Mary Ellen Turcotte, Bill Cross, Stephen Kutos, Jayme Condra and Matthew Rabelais.

Olde Towne Players will use these designs periodically on posters and publicity materials for company productions.

Theater group plans first production

Players set first show in October

Olde Towne Players will hold an open meeting at 7 p.m. Tuesday at Serenity Gallery, 126 Main St., Bay St. Louis, for writers, actors and other people interested in participating in the new theater company's first production - "Pearls."

Parsons -- new shuttle director

munity, and the nation will be served by Bill's great leadership. He will be missed by our colleagues at Stennis, but the benefits to all the NASA family will be tremendous."

Parsons succeeds Ronald D. Dittmore, who announced his resignation from the position of Space Shuttle Program manager on April 23. Parsons has served as center director since August 2002. Prior to that time, he was deputy director of Johnson Space Center in Houston, Texas. Parsons was first assigned to SSC in 1997 as the chief of operations for Propulsion Testing and returned to SSC in 2001, where he served as director of the Center Operations and Support Directorate.

"From the first time I saw a Space Shuttle launch, I knew I wanted to be a part of NASA and America's space exploration efforts," said Parsons. "This is a challenging time for the program, but the people of NASA have a long, successful history of overcoming adversity. I'm proud to be a part of the return-to-flight effort and look forward to getting the Space Shuttle safely flying again."

Parsons began his career in the United States Marine Corps as an infantry officer, then worked as a manufacturing engineer and later as an aerospace engineer at Cape Canaveral Air Force Station in Florida.

Parsons is a Mississippi native, from the communities of Silver Creek and Magnolia in Pike County, near McComb. He attended schools on the Coast, including Fernwood Middle School and Bayou View Jr. High, and completed high school at South Pike High in Pike County. Parsons graduated from the University of Mississippi with a bachelor's degree in engineering. He also holds a master of science degree in engineering management from the University of Central Florida.

Parsons has four children, Joshua Glen Parsons, 23; Jeremy William Parsons, 20; Sarah Elizabeth Parsons, 8; and William Wendell Parsons III, 6. Parsons and his wife, Amy Elizabeth, live in Diamondhead, Miss.

Stennis Deputy Director Michael Rudolph will serve as interim director until a permanent successor is named.

Sewer -- collections up

$35,000 in delinquent payments have accrued, said Commissioner Herman Johnson.

"Without this, we would have had to consider raising rates to keep us operating," said Smith.

In other business: Several members of the Moran family living on Henry Shubert Rd. appeared before commissioners to protest the fact that sewer service equipment had been installed on their property without the proper easement releases.

According to commissioners, several households on the property had been using the equipment for the past year. Apparently some had ceased to pay their monthly service charges and were involved in court cases because of non-payment.

The family was asking the district to cap off grinder pumps because they no longer wanted to use the service, but they wanted the district to leave the equipment because they said it would disrupt the property to dig it all up. It was unclear what the households on the property would use as an alternative for sewage treatment.

All the households are located south of the I-10 corridor, said commissioners. But much of the property is further than 100 feet from the sewer line and district policy does not require dwellings more than 100 feet from the sewer line to hook up to service, said Johnson. Johnson could not comment on whether the health department would require the households to hook up.

Commissioners said that the equipment could not be left on the property if the family was not going to use it.

It is also the policy of the district to pull equipment for non-payment of service bills, he said.

Eric Moran told commissioners that they were not authorized to come get the equipment on the family's private property.

Commissioners told the family that the equipment was technically the property of the U.S. government because federal grants had paid for the project and that unless an agreement could be worked out, the government would end up being the entity to remove the equipment.

No agreement to the problem was reached at the meeting though both commissioners and the Moran family did seem to agree that it would be better for all concerned if a compromise could be reached.

Hope -- donations down

February.

"The shelter maintains a savings balance of about four months operating costs as recommended by guidelines," said director Terry Latham. "But when you are operating this much in the red, that savings is not going to last long."

Latham said he thinks the war and the declining economy are part of the reason for the decline in donations from corporations, businesses, community organizations, churches and the general public, donations which make up about 45 percent of the revenue for operating the shelter.

The biggest decline, Latham said has been in the small donor, the checks for $25, $50, or $100. These donations have just about stopped, but we desperately need these donations to keep our doors open, he said.

"We want your pennies, literally" Latham said. "So we are launching our 'Pennies From Heaven' fund drive to challenge people to bring in loose change from jars, under couch cushions, on the floor of the car or whatever, just bring it in. It does not have to be rolled and we don't care if you bring it in in a box or in a sock."

Latham said that donations can be dropped off at the Hope Haven office in the Youth Court building at 126 Court St. or at Diamondhead Discount Drugs or call the shelter to make other arrangements.

Hope Haven will also be holding a Kids Walk For Kids fundraiser on Saturday, May 17 at 10 a.m. The walk will begin at the Washington Ave. Pier and end at the Garfield Ladner Pier and help raise money for the summer recreational program and awareness of child abuse.

Water stations will be set up along the three mile path with refreshments served at the finish. Donations can be made by age or miles walked. For more information call Tracy at 467-1010.

Hope Haven is the only non-profit emergency shelter for children on the coast. While other shelters in Harrison and Jackson Counties are fully funded by their respective counties, Hope Haven is not. Funds from the County and Waveland (Bay St. Louis has been unable to contribute for the past two years, Latham said), State placement funds, and the United Way make up about 55 percent of the $350,000 operating budget.

Second 'Flight of Dimes' to raise funds for 'Celebration of the Age of Aviation'

THE SEA COAST ECHO
The pilots of Diamondhead call it the Flight of Dimes, and it's coming again to the Diamondhead Airport - sightseeing sky rides over surrounding coastal areas, beginning at 9 a.m. and continuing through mid-afternoon on Saturday, May 17.

Using their own airplanes, as they did in a highly successful fund-raiser on March 29, the pilots will be giving airplane rides to all comers and asking only that the passengers contribute a dime, 10 cents, for each pound of their body weight as estimated by the riders themselves.

For most passengers, that will mean sightseeing flights for less than $20 each, and in the case of some youngsters for less than $10. A cook-out offering hamburgers and hotdogs to all donors will follow. The program is intended to raise funds for a two-day exposition celebrating a century of flight and featuring aircraft of many types and from various periods, from antiques to warplanes, scheduled for the third weekend in September. The celebration of the age of aviation will be part of a gala weekend at Diamondhead, scheduled to coincide with the community's noted annual arts-and-crafts festival.

For information, or to schedule a flight, call Charlotte Feola, 255-7011 or 467-8067.

Correction

A story which appeared in the Thursday, May 8 edition of the Sea Coast Echo in concerning a public hearing at last week's Hancock County Board of Supervisors meeting should have said that property at the corner of South Railroad and Clermont Blvd. had previously been used for commercial ventures. The property has never been zoned commercial.

Winn Dixie to get $1.1 million facelift

BY MARY G. SEILEY
STAFF WRITER

Work has started on a major reconstruction of the Winn Dixie in Bay St. Louis, a $1.1 million grocery store makeover.

"We're doing an extensive remodeling from floor to ceiling, and side to side. Every part of the store will be upgraded to provide a pleasant experience for our customers," said Winn Dixie spokeswoman Kathy Lussier.

The giant chain took over the former Jitney Jungle store in the Marketown Shopping Center in January 2000.

The local property is one of eight on the Mississippi Gulf Coast picked by Winn Dixie for renovations. Five have been upgraded within a 40-mile radius so far, including stores in Ocean Springs, D'Iberville, Gulfport and two in Long Beach.

Lussier said in addition to the current renovations in Bay St. Louis, stores in Biloxi and Pass Christian also are slated for upgrades.

The work includes revamping the delicatessen and bakery, "which are so important to our customers.

We definitely want to provide for our customers, what they need and what they want," said Lussier.

With work already in progress, materials are piled up on the store's front walkway.

Lussier said the decision for large-scale renovations was made after Winn Dixie officials assessed the whole area, to make sure their facilities meet demands.

Construction of Wal Mart Supercenters in Waveland and Pass Christian is ongoing, meanwhile, sandwiching the Bay St. Louis store in the middle. The Supercenters will feature large grocery departments.

Lussier said those two new developments didn't play a key role in the Winn Dixie renovations, however. "It's not so much that, as you can see from the fact that we are doing so many" makeovers, she said. "We always want to be the best store in the neighborhood.

Permits totaling $1,154,000 have been issued by Bay St. Louis building officials for the work. The project is expected to be completed by the end of summer.

Tax collections coming in below estimates

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Tax collections for April were $49.5 million below estimates and the Mississippi Tax Commission is baffled why the state is coming up so short.

State fiscal officer Gary Anderson said adjustments have been made in this year's budget to accommodate slow revenue growth. However, revenue overall remains about $125 million less than projections.

State Tax Commissioner Ed Buelow couldn't explain the April shortfall.

"We've looked at it inside and out, and there's just not a lot of anything you can attribute it to," he said.

The state collected $341.1 million last month. The projected collection was $390.6 million.

Most of the revenue shortfall, about $39 million, was in income tax collections.

Anderson, who is a Democrat running for state treasurer, said collections were projected too high for this year.

In April 2002, the state collected $126.1 million in individual income tax and took in $116.7 million this year. Anderson said he doesn't understand why collections of $155.7 million were projected for this year.

"These spreads are done by the Tax Commission, so we don't know what the Tax Commission was basing their estimate upon for them to believe the number would jump like that," Anderson said.

There was one bright spot in April's number.

The state took in about $34 million more between June 2002 and April 2003 than for the same period a year ago.

"We've got positive growth, but we've got slow growth," Anderson said.

He said it also appears tax returns are being processed slower than normal.

Buelow, however, said the shortfall had nothing to do with the processing of tax returns. In fact, he said, employees have processed 100,000 more tax returns this year than at the same time last year.

Buelow, a member of the group that recommends the revenue estimate each year, compared predicting how much money the state will collect each year to looking in a crystal ball.

"When the estimate was made two years ago, there was reason to believe those estimates would have been good," he said. "You can have hindsight, but anybody can do that."

Gaming summit raises questions

BY BARBARA POWELL
ASSOCIATED PRESS WRITER

BILOXI, Miss. (AP) — Mississippi's casinos can brag of stable revenues, but gaming industry experts say the state needs to watch competition that could sprout across the South.

Casino operators, tourism officials and gaming regulators say Mississippi's gambling operations must diversify their offerings and try to keep taxes low and regulations reasonable.

Gambling industry insiders met this week in Biloxi for the 2003 Southern Gaming Summit. Much of the talk involves protecting turf and growing revenues. Mississippi casino executives also are looking at warding off competition from other states.

"This has been a great state to do business in, open minded, fair but firm," said Tim Hinkley, senior vice president of operations for Isle of Capri Casinos Inc., which has four Mississippi casinos and eight other properties in Louisiana, Colorado, Iowa and Missouri.

"But there are rumblings of taxes coming down the road," Hinkley said. "There's still a lot of sectors that don't like gaming. And we've got to have a satellite school like Tulane (University) come in and offer gaming education. What's up with that? That's wrong."

Mississippi lawmakers have repeatedly rejected requests to let the state's universities and community colleges teach gaming management courses. Some legislators also have suggested raising gaming taxes next year to strengthen the lethargic state budget.

Casinos have pumped about $2 billion into state budget since the first casino opened in 1992.

Mississippi Gaming Commission Chairman Leonard Blackwell said the state should keep gaming taxes at a reasonable rate, currently 8 percent to the state and 4 percent to local governments. He also said the state should reconsider its rule that casinos must be on floating barges.

Many of the barges have a short life span and some casinos may need to be land-based at least temporarily "if the barges must be replaced," he said.

"It's time to inquire whether there's any discernible purpose to requiring Mississippi casinos vessels to float," Blackwell said.

The law limits state-regulated casinos to the Mississippi River and waters along the Gulf Coast. The Mississippi Supreme Court has upheld the limitations on where casinos can locate.

Some lawmakers and casino operators fear that eliminating the barge requirement could open other parts of the state to casino development.

The commission is studying whether to let casinos be land-based either temporarily or permanently on property the casinos already own near the barges. Land-based operations would make casinos more physically stable so they aren't threatened by catastrophic weather, said Gaming Commission executive director Larry Gregory.

Last fall, casinos on the Gulf Coast and in Vicksburg and Greenville were shut temporarily by strong storms.

Casino operators are also eyeing the prospect of competition in other states, including Alabama, Arkansas, Texas and Florida, where casino gambling could be approved in the next few years.

Hinkley said casino operators and state and local groups need to market more effectively to broaden casinos' drawing power and increase the number of times visitors return. One way to combat competition from surrounding states is to make sure charter or commercial flights are available from those areas to Mississippi, Hinkley said.

To attract more visitors, Boyd Gaming Corp. executive Keith Smith said his company has built an arena and a golf course in Tunica and is co-sponsoring a NASCAR race in Memphis.

St. Joseph 'Meditation Walk'

The Hancock County Master Gardeners Association lent its expertise and labor to the Friends of St. Joseph to establish a Meditation Walk on the plot of land behind the St. Joseph Catholic Chapel, which is located in the Cedar Point area of Dunbar Avenue.

The land involved is a heavily wooded piece of property behind the Chapel parking lot which had been donated some time ago to the Our Lady of the Gulf parish but had lain dormant since its acquisition.

St. Joseph Chapel, erected in 1896 under the guidance of the Bay's Our Lady of the Gulf pastor Father Le Duc, was established in the Cedar Point area for the convenience of the Catholics in the vicinity. In addition to the many native Catholics in that locale there were a good number of Catholic Slavs and Austrians who were brought in from Baltimore, Maryland on a seasonal basis to work in the canning factory operated by Dunbar family interests at the north end of the Bay in the Cedar Point area.

When the current OLG pastor Father Michael Tracy reviewed and approved the project, he suggested that consideration be given to putting the Stations of the Cross along the meditation walk some time in the future.

The project involved several groups of people, all donating their time and efforts. The Master Gardeners, under the able direction of Judy Reeves, supplied the layout, oversaw the actual implementation of the plan and provided much of the labor. Friends of St. Joseph member Dave Peranich contacted Coast Electric for the abundance of wood chips used as covering for the walkway. Master Gardener Bob Huet constructed the two walkway bridges needed to span the small stream flowing from a continuous-running well on the property. Young men volunteering from a St. Stanislaus service club assisted the Master Gardeners with some of the manual labor to clear the abundant underbrush along the meditation walk.

The Hancock County Master Gardeners Association is a group of about twenty (20) people who have completed the Mississippi Extension Service course on horticulture. They serve as a volunteer extension of the Service, doing education and service work in the community.

The Hancock County group was formed in 1999 under the direction of Kathy Lynn Bell and has participated in gardening activities in many places around Bay St. Louis as well as manning the Hotline on Thursdays in the Harrison County Extension Office. They also have a plant sale every year giving the public an opportunity to buy very healthy, but inexpensive, plants.

Individuals interested in joining the Hancock County Master Gardeners Association can leave their name and number with Biddy at the Extension Office (467-5456) or Judy Reeves (467-5044). They will be informed when the next class is being formed.

The next step for the Meditation Walk project is to put an iron fence and arch between the Chapel parking lot and the actual walk way. This part of the plan will be completed in the near future. The Stations of the Cross phase is still in the planning stage.

Necaise promoted to C Shift Lieut.

With sixteen years experience and an excellent resume of advanced fire fighter training Stanley Necaise was selected for promotion to C Shift Lieutenant of the Bay St. Louis Fire Department.

Necaise underwent a lengthy resume review of his education and service by Fire Chief Robert Gavagnie before final review for selection by the Departments three Captains, Pam San Filippo, Rodney Auguzin and Louis Prendergast. He will serve with Captain San Filippo and firefighters Shawn Self, Brian Ladner, Monty Strong and beginning April 4 new firefighter Wade Mayeaux.

Having completed all requisite advanced training for firefighters Necaise is also a Certified Advanced Rescue Specialist. In addition he has been instructor trained in Advanced Rescue and can teach this class for the Mississippi Fire Academy and will assist with local in-house training in this specialty.

"The opportunity for continuous training is the reason I wanted to work with this Department. This promotion is a great opportunity for me and I look forward to working with my new firefighting team," said Necaise.

"Our shift enjoys having Stanley as a part of our team. His leadership skills, education and experience brings a new dimension and compliments our existing firefighting experiences," said Captain San Filippo.

Necaise is married to Kathy Cannon and they have three children. He joined the Bay St. Louis Fire Department four years ago after twelve years with the Pass Christian Fire Department.

Williams to coach alma mater

BY JOSEPH W. GEX II
STAFF WRITER

Bay St. Louis resident and former Mississippi State University Bulldogs head coach will once again work the bench on the hardwood.

After a five-year absence from the game, Richard Williams will take the reigns at his alma mater Pearl High School beginning in 2003-04.

Williams has worked as a consultant with Jay Ladner and the St. Stanislaus Rock-a-chaws for the past four seasons. It was during these workouts that

Williams felt the urge to get back into coaching after retiring from MSU in 1998. Williams stated, "The last four seasons working with Jay Ladner and the athletes at SSC, on an unofficial basis, is when I really found out how much I miss working with the young people."

Williams, who played basketball for the Pirates in high school, still has family in the Jackson area. His father-in-law and his mother both still reside in Jackson. Having family there was also a deciding factor in his return to the Jackson area.

He will coach only basketball and not teach any classes. The way his job is contracted through the school, Williams' Mississippi retirement plan will be kept intact.

Williams started his coaching career in 1967 at Montebello Junior High School.

From 1968-70 he was the head coach at Saint Andrews Episcopal Junior High. South Natchez hired him as an assistant coach from 1970-72. From 1972-79, Williams was head coach at South Natchez. Copiah-Lincoln Junior College retained Williams as head coach from 1979-84.

In 1984, Williams began his coaching career at Mississippi State University. He was an assistant from 1984-86. In 1986 he was named the Bulldogs head coach. Williams held the head coaching position from 1986-98 and retired as the winningest basketball coach in MSU history. In 1996, he led the Bulldogs to the Final Four.

In 2000-01 he enjoyed a brief stint as head coach with ABA's Memphis HounDawgs.

OLA's Harshbarger signs with USM

Kara Harshbarger, a graduating senior from Our Lady Academy, has recently signed a scholarship to play soccer for the University of Southern Mississippi. She is the daughter of Mark and Kathy Harshbarger of Long Beach.

Miss Harshbarger is a five year letterman at Our Lady Academy. She has been selected as an All-Division Player for the past five years. She has also been selected as an All-State Performer for three years by the Mississippi Association of Coaches.

She was further honored to be on the Sun Herald's All-Coast team the last two years and was the CoMVP of that team this year. She was a Gatorade "Will To Win" athlete in 2002 and was the Pop Allen Semi-finalist for Player of the Year in 2002. Kara will play in the upcoming annual Senior All Star Game in Clinton for the south squad. She was, this past year, elected co-captain on the Our Lady Academy Soccer Team which recently won its fourth consecutive state championship. In her career at OLA, Kara scored 64 goals and dished up a school record 70 assists. Head Coach Danny Owens of OLA sites Kara's leadership and polished play as her key assets. He further feels that she will have an immediate positive impact on the USM Eagles Team. Kara has also played for the past four years for the Baton Rouge Red Star Select Team.

She is also a member of the National Honor Society and has served on the Student Council.

Lynn Meadows Discovery Center celebrates fifth anniversary May 17

the sea coast echo

"Once Upon a Birthday" is the theme for the 5th birthday of the Lynn Meadows Discovery Center on Saturday, May 17, 10:00 a.m.-4:00 p.m. With a reading and literacy focus for the event, books and characters come to life in performances and activities for the whole family. "Literacy has many faces - literature, art, math and sciences", says Betsy Grant, Director of the Lynn Meadows Discovery Center. "Literacy also means learning to look at things from different perspectives allowing children to expand their world".

The Discovery Center is working with librarians from the Jackson-George, Harrison and Hancock County libraries and from the Long Beach Library to present a fun-filled day for families. The Jackson-George Regional Library collaborated with the Discovery Center on 'Harry Potter's Hogwarts Happening' in October, 2002. "An entertaining event about books", says Mary Ann Louviere, Youth Services Librarian, "captures children's imaginations and encourages their interest in a variety of topics they can enjoy during their 'growing up' years".

Become the character Junie B. Jones by designing a pair of unique glasses at the Eyeglass Factory.

Create a quilt collage in the style of Little House on the Prairie. Challenge Harry Potter and his pals in a fast-paced game of Quidditch. Celebrate the fantasy world of fairy tales by making a Billy Goat Gruff collar and fashioning a Little Red Riding Hood picnic basket. Use animal track stamps to produce a personal nature guide to use with the series One Small Square. Weave a spider web sculpture using natural materials in the style of Eric Carle's The Very Busy Spider. Shape origami paper like cranes and butterflies as shown in Sadako and the Thousand Paper Cranes.

Search for "five sets of five" in the Birthday Scavenger Hunt with a chance to win a birthday party at the Discovery Center. Cat in the Hat and Thing One, Cinderella and Prince Charming, Harry Potter, Twelve Dancing Princesses, Mother Goose and other characters will be our guests for the day. Interactive performances will engage children in various roles as they take to the stage.

In the Author's Nook, rookie and veteran authors will be on hand for interviews and autographs. Book Ends in Bay St. Louis and Berthe Amoss, New Orleans author of 20 picture books and young adult novels, will feature Amoss's fairy tales books with a Cajun twist. Coast Books in Gulfport and Marycelest Clement, South Louisiana author, will showcase Clement's first book Mister Tootles and Those Oodles of Noodles. Carol Paola from Quarles Elementary in Long Beach and her fourth grade Discovery gifted class have published "Pirates, Indians & Bears, Oh My", a history of Long Beach. "My students are contributing authors and illustrators for this project", says Paola, "which is an extension of their history curriculum. The publication is designed to be shared with other children". Other publications previous fourth grade classes have published are Kids Guide to the Mississippi Gulf Coast and Kids Guide to Long Beach.

Wood & Strings Theatre from Tennessee will present a professional puppet performance of "Ananse-Early in the Day". Ananse the Spider, trickster of the Ashanti folklore, shares comical adventures with dozens of other characters. Drawing from inspiration from the music, masks, costumes, carvings and oral traditions, this production brings to the stage the vibrant splendor and magic of West Africa. Performances are at 10:30 and 3:30 with a puppet making workshop from 12:00-1:30. Southern Arts Federation provided partial funding for this program.

Since opening five years ago, the Lynn Meadows Discovery Center has welcomed more than 350,000 visitors. The Discovery Center was selected one of the USA's top 50 children's museums.

A capitol campaign for a new Performing Arts and Education Center for Youth, the first of its kind in Mississippi, kicked off in January, 2003 with Alden & Emeril Lagasse as national chairpersons.

There is a $2.50 event fee in addition to admission or membership. For more information call 897-6039.

Find new angelonia varieties this spring

SOUTHERN GARDENING
BY NORMAN WINTER
MSU Horticulturist
Central Mississippi
Research & Extension
Center

If I had to list the best flower introductions of the last 10 years, I might have to put angelonias at the top. It seems like it was only yesterday when I saw my first ones in the median of downtown Raymond. Then there was the introduction of Hilo Princess, a Florida Plant of the Year, and a few obscure varieties.

Today the world is changing as everyone is introducing angelonias, and they all look good. Before I discuss these varieties, there may be a few of you who do not know this wonderful plant. They are related to snapdragons and, in fact, many tags now read "Summer Snapdragon." Believe me, these flowers are definitely from the heat-loving side of the family.

The 30-inch-tall, spiky flowers of the angelonia are a welcome sight in the world where round flowers seem to dominate. The texture of the plant is a joy to behold. One thing that surprises me is that the price of angelonias is really a good value.

Plant them in well-drained, well-prepared beds rich in organic matter. Choose a site in full sun for best flowering. It is hard to believe that a plant in the snapdragon family relishes our summer heat and humidity.

Once established in the bed, angelonias seem to have remarkable drought tolerance. This is particularly true in organic-rich beds where a layer of mulch has been added. Pay attention though, because if we should go through a prolonged dry spell, supplemental irrigation would be necessary. Please do not stick this wonderful plant in tight, cement-like soil.

A light monthly application of a 2-1-2-ratio fertilizer, such as a 10-5-10 with minor nutrients, is all this plant needs to keep blooming. The bloom period is really long, and when it does want to cycle, it responds well to trimming back with a pair of pruning shears.

The angelonia will be treated as an annual most years, except in south Mississippi. However, they have come back three out of five years at the Truck Crops Branch Experiment Station in Crystal Springs. The poorer the drainage, the less likely they will return.

MEMORIES of Mother

BY BENNIE SHALLBETTER
Staff Writer

At the end of her life my mother was a tiny, quiet woman, confined to a wheel chair, her conversation barely audible unless I pulled my chair up close and leaned in to hear what she had to say.

"Do you know why I'm still here," she asked me one day.

My friend thought she was asking why she had not been able to go home yet from the nursing home where she had spent the past couple of years. But I knew what she was really saying ... she was saying that she was ready to move on, impatient even, to see what the other side would bring, and say good-bye to a life lived fully.

Born Genevieve Bruton in Lafayette, Louisiana in the year 1910, one of the five children of Ada and Jody Joe Jackson Bruton, my mother saw the world change in ways that I could only try to imagine. Being a red headed freckle faced Cajun girl was not the popular thing then that it has become today. Paradoxically she carried a kind of embarrassment of her heritage with her for her whole life and along with it a kind of pride.

Later, when she married my father, who was from Beaumont, she became Jeane Dorfman.

She didn't believe in doctors and never went herself, though she did make sure I had all the required medical attention. I was taught from an early age that health depended largely on your attitude and self care.

Snacks were pieces of raw vegetables of every kind; sweets were honey combs and frozen chocolate milk and the cure for any illness from a cold to a blue mood was to get up and do something.

"You take care of yourself and stay in touch with your body," my mother would tell me. "Then if something goes wrong you will be aware of it right away ... then you think the problem away."

I never thought to question this philosophy and accepted its teachings. Probably much in the same way that my mother must have accepted it when she learned it growing up so long ago. Later I realized my mother was way ahead of her time in her beliefs, and much later still I realized that she died never having had any major illnesses (except a childhood bout with small pox and a severely inflamed appendix, neither of which she was hospitalized for). So how can you question what seems to have worked.

As a child I remember my mother being a kind of a wild woman, compared to my friends' mothers. Though she was older, she was spiffier. I never saw her without full makeup and heels until I was a grown woman.

When we went to the beach (on the Texas coast where we lived) she had the snazziest swim suits you could imagine. When she walked across the sand, every head turned. And oddly enough for a natural redhead, my mother tanned beautifully.

She loved people and had friends in all the little towns up and down the coast. I grew up in a world of women; sitting around

(Top) I'm not sure what age my mother was here, but it is one of my favorite photographs. She could have been 25 or she could have been 40, as other photographs show she looked much the same at both ages. When I was a child she dyed her red hair blonde.

(Left) My mother Jeane at age 91 or 92, last May, just a month before she died on a beautiful afternoon in June, shortly after having her lunch. She worked a full time job till the age of 87 and did all her own gardening, which she loved.

knew the secret of telling a good story; spice it up.

She also liked to impart her version of life's wisdom in story form. She was a firm believer in the fact that people died "when it was their time to go" and not a moment before. She would emphasize this truth by telling me a story about her two friends who were sitting in their living room watching TV when an 18 wheel truck, veered through the wall, hit the couch, and killed them both. So there is no need to spend your life worrying about it, she would say.

When she was about 15 years old my mother hitched hiked to California, in 1925.

"You didn't need to worry about people then," she said. "People just helped one another and I never had any trouble of any kind. You didn't even think about it."

The Great Waveland Yacht Race

Mr. La Violette is taking six weeks off to promote his new book, Sink or be Sunk. In his absence we are publishing a series of his early stories on sailing in the Mississippi Sound. We hope you enjoy them.

While I have had experience with Hobbies, my principal sailing has been on a Sunfish, a 14-foot personal sailboat that's barely big enough for one and a half adults. My half adult was usually Gretal, a silver colored Weimaraner that was my pleasure to enjoy living with for many years.

One Saturday, three of the neighborhood girls, all preteens, came down and took for a sail one of the several Sunfishes laying on the beach in front of our house out. They didn't go very far, sailing back and forth a little ways out from the beach. It was a pretty day with light breezes, just enough to move their boat along at an easy pace. They had an older model

Sunfish and the sail sagged slightly showing its age, but I will admit, they went along very well.

I had been out with Gretal that morning and the two of us had our usual fun. I had cleated the sail in a locked position and then, tying a line around the tiller and then to my wrist, had jumped over the side and had the Sunfish tow me through the water with Gretal in command, barking at any other boats to get out of the way. Later, we had threaded the needle through the old set of pilings, chased the birds off some pilings, and then, bored by vagaries of the light winds, I had brought us back ashore and sat on the porch, watching the girls, with Gretal sprawled at my feet.

Lee, a neighbor, came up on the porch. "Is that my daughter Dianne out there with them?"

"Yeah," I said, "It's her, Missy and Anne. Sit down and watch them. They're doing very well."

We sat and watched. I could feel Lee getting antsy. "Paul, you've got your Sunfish rigged. Let's go out and show them how to really sail." I am ashamed to say I put Gretal inside and the two of us went down to the beach to show the kids what sailing was all about.

"First," I said when we got to the boat, "we have to drain it."

"Drain it?" He looked at the boat. "Why?"

"Gretal and I took it out this morning. Usually, after we run it for awhile, it tends to get a little water in the hull through some small cracks."

Selecting a Dance Studio for your child.

Kim Smith, Director
BS Degree USM

Ask if the teacher has a college degree or other related professional experience. Since anyone can hang a shingle, you need to make sure that the person you are entrusting your child with is qualified. Also, you may want to ask about professional affiliations such as PDDA, DMA, DEA, or NAADA.

Ask to see a dance recital or videotape from the studio's recital. Make sure that the style of dance presented by that teacher is in tune with your moral belief system. There is a trend these days for too much suggestive dance and for dances and costumes that are inappropriate for children.

Casino Magic presents the Four Tops

THE SEA COAST ECHO

The Four Tops will bring their special brand of harmonizing to Casino Magic Bay St. Louis Friday & Saturday, June 6 & 7 at 9 p.m. each evening. Tickets are $14.95, $19.95, and $24.95 and are available at the Casino Magic Box Office, by calling 1-800-5-MAGIC-5, or at any Ticketmaster location.

The Four Tops have been marveling audiences with their unique blend of pure vocal power and unparalleled harmonies since 1954. They have brought to the American people and the world a sound so singular that it is woven into the fabric of American pop music. Hits like "Baby, I Need Your Lovin'," "I Can't Help Myself (Sugar Pie Honey Bunch)" and "Reach Out, I'll Be There" topped the charts and became anthems of a generation.

The Tops were a sensation abroad as well. At a time when the U.S. charts were dominated by the Beatles and the Rolling Stones, The Four Tops sat like kings at number one in England. Later came more hits like "Ain't No Woman (Like the One I Got)," "Keeper of the Castle," "Are You Man Enough" and "Am I My Brothers' Keeper?" The Four Tops were stunning audiences with their live performances, sweating their soul on stage proving that their blend of emotional stage persona and unforgettable songs had launched them to the pinnacle of the entertainment world.

THE FOUR TOPS

In the early 1980's, The Four Tops recorded two albums, showcasing such monster hits as "When She Was My Girl," "Tonight I'm Gonna Love You All Over" and "I Believe In You and Me." Later, they recorded "Indestructible" which garnered rave reviews. In 1990, The Tops were inducted into the Rock 'n Roll Hall of Fame, and in 1997 were honored with a star on Hollywood Boulevard, adding to their growing list of awards and accolades. Sadly, in June of 1997, one of the Tops, Lawrence Payton, died of liver cancer. The Four Tops had 44 years together and then there were three. Originally, the three decided to go on and sing and to continue doing what they had started to do years ago to bring joy to millions through their music. Then along came Theo Peoples (former member of The Temptations) who fit in perfectly, so once again there are Four Tops, still true to the soul, memory and performance of Payton.

Generations can close their eyes, hear a Four Tops tune and it catapults them to a memory. This group has the distinct pleasure of marking a part of American culture with their music. Today, The Four Tops are going strong, performing to standing room only crowds all over the world, delighting old and new fans alike. Their powerful, recognizable sweet harmonies and unforgettable voices have firmly established their status in music history as musical legends!

Mother

During her short stay there she met another young woman who had a small boy about a year or so old and the two decided to head back east together. They stopped somewhere along the way to work a few days in a hotel restaurant and one morning when my mother woke up, she found herself alone with the baby. The mother didn't come back and so a few days later, my mother hitched back home with him. He became James and part of our family. She would always tell me the story when we were going through old photos.

"People were different then," she would say. "I didn't think for a minute that I wouldn't take the baby with me and mama and papa didn't think for a minute that he would go anywhere else."

My mother had a green thumb. The yards of my childhood were more like jungles where I climbed giant china berry trees, hung in weeping willows, tickled noses with Mimosa flowers and made Hawaiian leis with the sweet smelling flowers from the enormous oleander bushes that lined our yard. She would stoop, pick up a stick, and say, this is ... whatever tree or plant she had deemed it to be. She would take it home, plant it and it would grow; it would always grow. Later her love of lilies dominated her gardens. The house where she lived last had a yard full of lilies and of course many "sticks" that had turned into trees.

Last June my mother died at the age of 91 or 92, depending on the birthday you use. She celebrated her birthday on July 4, but some of the records she dug up to prove her age for social security said her birthday was April 28. Her license listed her age as five years younger. It was the custom, she said, for ladies to subtract five years from their age when they got their license.

There were so many questions, even then, that went unanswered for me about her life. Now my mother has the answer to some of her questions, and I hope the place she is, is as wonderful as she imagined. If you hear thunder in the next few days, you will know she discovered that I put a picture of her in the newspaper.

Gardening

When angelonias bloom, they make you think they would be at home in a cottage-like garden.

They are not as tall as the larkspur, but they give a sense of belonging in that style of garden. They look good with New Gold lantana or planted in drifts adjacent to black-eyed Susans. The white and pink varieties look awesome planted in front of tall, purple coneflowers.

A couple of years ago,

Ball FloraPlant introduced the AngelMist series with deep plum, richer pinks and purples, and a better white. These have also been virus indexed, meaning they are virus-free.

New this year from Proven Winners is the Angel Face series. In Walt Disney World trials, these did exceptionally well. In my garden it seemed the flowers were larger.

From the Goldsmith/Ecke partnership this spring is the Carita series, which includes several colors. They have the appearance of being more compact, yet produce flowers in larger quantities.

Regardless of the angelonias you choose, you can rest assured you are getting one of the best in new flowers. Look for angelonias now at your garden center. I feel confident you will fall in love with this plant like I have.

"Cracks?" By now he was really staring at the boat and bending down low finally spotted the tiny cracks. "How did the hull get those cracks in it?"

"I got into an accident awhile back. I er, tried going in between that last set of poles out there."

"The last set? Is there room for the boat to go through those poles?"

"No," I said. By now I had opened the drain valve and he helped me turn the boat on its side to allow it to drain. We stood quietly for a few minutes and watched the water draining out of the hull make a deep furrow in the sand. Then, with the water out and the hull much lighter, we went out with Lee loudly yelling our challenge at the girls. The girls stopped and looked over at us. Their sagging sail whipped back and forth making a clanging noise.

"We'll go from the Jeffrey's pier to Carrere's pier. And the winner is the winner!" Lee yelled at them. "All right!" they yelled and turning their rudder, their old sail filled out and they headed for the starting point. We turned and followed. As we followed behind them, I started to get worried. They were edging us to the starting place. Not by much, but enough so that I wasn't as sure we would do well when the race started.

"Ah, Lee," I said, "I think they may have the faster boat."

"No, we can do it," said Lee confidently. "You've got a newer boat, you've got a new sail, we know sailing technique they haven't even dreamed of. Don't worry. We can do it. We'll show them they have a lot to learn. Kids need to learn that nothing beats skill and experience."

I wanted to point out that Lee weighed 205 pounds, I was 180, the boat leaked, and the girls had a faster boat, but I saw it wouldn't do any good so we went ahead.

They beat us pretty badly that first run. Very bad; it was embarrassing. Lee yelled at the girls sitting quietly in their boat for us to come up to them. "We need a rematch!" And so we raced them back to Jeffrey's pier and unbelievable as it may sound, they beat us on that run even worse.

I wasn't happy, but Lee was infuriated.

It was how the girls beat us that was really galling him. They didn't care. They really didn't care. If they won, fine; if they didn't win, fine. They actually sang songs as they sailed and once, one of them got up and did a silly dance holding on to the mast (which should have slowed them down, but didn't). Then when they reached the end point, they sat quietly waiting for us to catch up.

I didn't continue but turned the boat and headed for shore. As we went, we could hear them starting to sing another of their songs. It wasn't far to the beach, but Lee was very quiet and it seemed like it took a long time. "You know, Lee," I said as I ran it onto the beach, "I bet we didn't get all the water out of the hull."

"You're probably right. We had too much water. I noticed it acted a little sluggish out there." He helped me pull it up on the sand. It did seem a little heavy; there might well have been some water in the hull.

"It probably has a lot of water. Let's not worry about it now. I'll come down and drain it later when I come for the sails. Come on up on the porch. Stella's made some cake and sun tea. We'll watch them make sailing errors from those driftwood benches you and I made."

We sat in the shade of the porch and ate Stella's cake and drank iced sun tea and watched the girls sail. I don't know if it was just the boat. It appeared to me that they sailed very well.

Navy Seaman Recruit Brandon W. Favre, son of Linda P. Favre of Metairie, La. and Ronald J. Favre of Waveland, Miss., recently completed U.S. Navy basic training at Recruit Training Command, Great Lakes, Ill.

During the eight-week program, Favre completed a variety of training which included classroom study and practical instruction on naval customs, first aid, firefighting, water safety and survival, and shipboard and aircraft safety. An emphasis was also placed on physical fitness.

The capstone event of boot camp is "Battle Stations". This exercise gives recruits the key skills and confidence they need to graduate and take to the fleet. "Battle Stations" has been designed to galvanize the basic warrior attributes of sacrifice, dedication, teamwork and endurance in each recruit through the practical application of basic Navy skills and the core values of Honor, Courage and Commitment. Its distinctly 'Navy' flavor was designed to take into account what it means to be a Sailor.

Favre is a 1994 graduate of De La Salle High School of New Orleans, La.

Marine Corps Lance Cpl. Robert C. Day, a 1999 graduate of St. Stanislaus High School, Bay St. Louis, Miss., is currently deployed in support of Operation Iraqi Freedom while assigned to the 26th Marine Expeditionary Unit, based in Camp Lejeune, N.C.

Day is one of more than 4,000 Pacific Fleet Sailors and Marines who deployed aboard the ships of the USS Iwo Jima Amphibious Ready Group.

Day's unit is an expeditionary intervention force with the ability to rapidly organize for combat operations in virtually any environment. MEUs are composed of more than 2,000 personnel and are divided into an infantry battalion, aircraft squadron, support group, and command element. With this combination, Day's unit supplies and sustains itself for either quick mission accomplishment or clearing the way for follow-on forces.

Cadets receive instruction in military training and application, professional knowledge, human behavior, defense studies, leadership studies and management, communication skills, physical fitness, and field training exercises.

Public Service Commission to speak about telemarketing law

The sea coast echoThe Mississippi Public Service Commission will conduct "Town Hall" meetings throughout the Southern District the week of May 12th.

calls invading our consumer's homes.

Commissioner Callahan stated, "Educating our consumers about the new Telemarketing Law is of utmost importance." The now law, which allows Mississippi consumers to place their names on a "Do Not Call List", will be available after July 1st. "This law will not eliminate all telemarketing calls but will significantly reduce the number of unwanted calls that interrupt the daily activities of our residents."

The schedule of meetings is as follows:

May 16th
10:00 a.m. Picayune
Criminal Justice Building
1:00 p.m. The Depot - Bay St. Louis

Commissioner Callahan emphasized the Public Service Commission's encouragement of all local and state elected officials who represent the surrounding areas to attend these meetings. "All associations, organizations and individuals interested in learning about this new Telemarketing Law are also encouraged to attend," added Commissioner Callahan.

Politicos: Do the Golden Rule

"Allow us to do for ourselves what you would like us to do for you." Of course, you recognize that as a very selfish, venal paraphrase and corruption of the golden rule Jesus laid out for us in Matthew 7:12: "Do to others whatever you would have them do to you." That paraphrase, by the way, is a disgusting summary of what most of our legislators do for themselves.

Take, for instance, their most blatant trampling of the golden rule evident in their elevation of themselves to a special, elite status in our entire country with regard to Social Security. First of all, our senators and congress persons do not pay into Social Security and, therefore, do not collect from it.

However, in spite of not collecting from that source after retirement, they receive a monthly retirement check many times the equivalent of Social Security benefits. So they come out way ahead at both ends of the deal. They continue to draw their active pay until they die, with occasional adjustments for the cost of living. But how much is this pay which they draw until death?

Using the round figure of $150,000 as their annual salary, let us say a given legislator works for 20 years. Simple arithmetic gives her/him the tidy total of $3 million, not counting the perks such as food and travel expenses, franking privileges, office expenses and staff salaries.

Amazingly, none of that gold rush slows down after retirement. Should the retirement last another 15 years, that total stacks up another one and a half times, so that the retiree is working toward a $6 million touchdown.

Add another million or so when you factor in the check of the legislator's spouse.

At the bottom of the totem pole, hard-working, everyday women and men set their jaw and suffer Social Security and other withholding taxes from their sometimes meager paycheck, then pray for a small rebate after April 15. An average of $1,000 per month is their grand reward after retirement.

They can only dream of living in a legislator's sweetheart arrangement.

It simply baffles our minds when we consider that we call our elected officials "public servants," and indeed they live under the illusion that they are exactly that. But how can that be when leaders do for themselves what their little constituents would like them to do for the rank and file people?

That is, they do for themselves only, and not for their constituents.

Yes, for the most part, our public servants are the best living examples of our hard-earned tax dollars at work; that is, working for the public servants.

Reflections on Life

by Father Jerome LeDoux, SVD

After all, the generous, untaxed salaries, numerous perquisites, economic bonuses and incredible retirement checks come from the U.S. general funds.

Many legislators, of course, are hard-working and unselfish in many ways.

Still, they are severely tainted by the mixed-blessing, half-curse of their enviable pay scale and huge economic privileges. The most bothersome thing is that they do not lift a finger to stem, let alone reverse, the advance of any elements of their exceedingly gainful, comfortable job arrangements.

Why not be satisfied to sit on one's laurels and do nothing to rock the boat when everything, especially one's daily expenses and overall economic security are taken care of in such a way that no personal anxiety is involved? Why try to fix what is not broken at all? Just do whatever gleans you votes.

Most astonishing of all this is the completely improbable paradigm of the 12 apostles of Jesus which our legislators seem to be following slavishly in many details. One would think they are eager to be apostles of Jesus, seeing how they fit so snugly into the sandals of the rough fishermen of Galilee.

For starters, there is the apostle complex which often asks, "Who's on first? Who is the most important?" (Luke 22:24). The apostle complex also seeks to have or at least share the spotlight of the greatest luminaries at hand. In Matthew 20, Zebedee's wife asks Jesus: "Command that these two sons of mine sit, one at your right and the other at your left, in your kingdom."

It is intriguing, curious, almost comic that leaders as far apart civically, philosophically and theologically as the apostles and our legislators could mirror each other so tightly that their quest for security plus a coveted 15 minutes of fame oft eclipses the needs and well-being of their constituents.

Apostles, legislators, community leaders, teachers, counselors, preachers and gurus of every stamp all vie to outdo each other in fulfilling the lesson of Ecclesiastes 1: "What has been, that will be; what has been done, that will be done. Nothing is new under the sun — I have seen all things that are done under the sun, and behold, all is vanity and a chase after wind."

The intent of Ecclesiastes is not to cast a negative cloud of doom, gloom and despair over us and our legislators.

Rather, the prophet has in mind that we learn from the hapless apostles, our sometimes even more hapless elected officials and all our leaders that the only effective and meaningful way to lead is to serve, as modeled so splendidly by the Messianic Servant of God.

The "Word" for the Week

Discipleship and the Church

Dennis J. Protow • Box 300 • Waveland, MS 39576

You cannot be a student if you do not attend school. Being a student and attending school go hand in hand.

The same thing applies if you are really going to be a Christian, a disciple of Christ. You must enroll in the school of Christ. And the school of Christ is the church.

For many people, joining a church or attending worship services is a matter of indifference. The only objective for spending an hour at a worship service is to get a spiritual shot in the arm. But discipleship involves a lot more. It involves teaching. It involves entering the church to receive teaching.

Christ commanded, "Go therefore and make disciples of all the nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father and the Son and the Holy Spirit, teaching them to observe all that I commanded you" (Matthew 28:19-20).

In other words, becoming a disciple involves being baptized, because baptism is an ordinance of the church. When you are baptized, you become a part of the church. In fact, you become a member of a local church. In that church you are to be taught to observe or do all that Christ commanded.

You see, the church is a school. It's not a high blown academic institution. It's a vocational school. To be sure, there is book learning. The book is the Bible, and you are taught the Bible from cover to cover. You are taught to live by the Bible. Your practical work faces you every day in all that you do. Yes, the church is the school of Christ. Hebrews 10:24-25 applies to the church, "Let us consider how to stimulate one another to love and good deeds, not forsaking our own assembling together, as is the habit of some."

Checking in with Carlos Bernard

By Kate O'Hare
© Zap2it

Asked if his character, government agent Tony Almeida, is this year's mole on the Fox Tuesday-night espionage drama "24," actor Carlos Bernard dodges the question, saying, "I haven't read the last two episodes yet."

At least he's not under the same cloud of suspicion as he was last year, before Nina (Sarah Clarke), his girlfriend and co-worker at the Los Angeles-based Counter Terrorist Unit, was revealed to be a turncoat.

"Everybody suspected me last year, so the reactions were much different in the street," Bernard says. "People would come up, be much more suspicious, stare. The stares are a lot friendlier this year."

Of course, having dated last year's mole hasn't stopped Tony from flirting with co-worker Michelle (Reiko Aylesworth).

"You think I'd learn, right?" he asks. "Man, you think he would learn not to mess around with people in the office. Everybody's got their Achilles heel, eh?"

Midway through the season — in which each one-hour episode represents one hour in a single day — Tony had to take over the running of CTU, following a terrorist bombing.

This event happened about the same time as Bernard injured his ankle playing basketball, forcing actor and character to have a cast and crutches, and curtailing any adventures in the field.

Carlos Bernard

Next season, Bernard would like to see the straight-laced Tony cut loose a bit (provided the character survives). "He's learned to break rules to get certain things done."

Birthplace: Chicago

Full name: Carlos Bernard Papierski

International heritage: Bernard's father is Polish-American, and his mother is Spanish. "They met in Paris," he says. "They went to go see Louis Armstrong on their first date in Paris. Can you believe that?"

Other family ties: Married to actress Sharisse Baker.

Screen debut: In the 1996 film "The Killing Jar." One of his co-stars was Xander Berkeley, who played George Mason in "24."

Travel Channel explores historic Arlington Cemetery

By John Crook
© Zap2it

With the approaching Memorial Day weekend, Travel Channel spotlights a tourist destination that is expected to see a sharp rise in visitors in the wake of recent world events in "American Icons: Arlington National Cemetery With Senator John McCain."

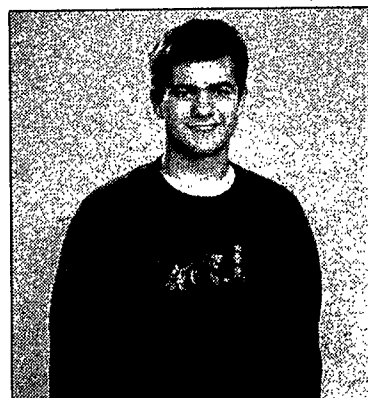

The hourlong special, which premieres Monday, May 12, explores the history and traditions of the national resting place, where the father, grandfather and two uncles of host McCain are buried.

"Most of those buried (at Arlington) were simple, courageous soldiers," McCain says. "I fought alongside some of them myself, and I know that the real story of Arlington is sacrifice: ordinary men and women willing to fight, and sometimes die, for what they believed in."

Ironically, one of America's most hallowed destinations began as an act of deliberate spite when a Union officer turned an estate formerly owned by Confederate Gen. Robert E. Lee into a military cemetery for war casualties in and around Washington. Union Quartermaster General Montgomery Meigs, a former friend of Lee, ordered bodies buried right up to the edge of the house so Lee would never reclaim his former home.

In those days, Arlington was primarily a pauper's cemetery reserved for the poor and unknown dead. The site achieved its current stature with the 1963 interment of President John F. Kennedy, who had visited the cemetery earlier that year and, standing on the site that would become his grave, had been so struck by the lovely view that he remarked, "This is so wonderful, I could just stay here forever." After Kennedy's funeral, requests for burial in Arlington rose 400 percent, resulting in tightened restrictions on who could be buried there.

"One cannot go to Arlington Cemetery and see name upon name, grave upon grave, and row upon row, without being deeply moved by the sacrifice made by those young men and women," McCain says. "Those of us who live in this time of unparalleled comfort and ease ... dare not forget what they did and why they did it."

Forget chocolates: TV has all the (eye) candy Mom craves

By Jacqueline Cutler
© Zap2it

Served by your children, burnt toast and grainy coffee make a delicious breakfast in bed. Grape bubblegum bath sets purchased with saved allowances smell exquisite, and hand-picked bouquets of grubby dandelions seem exotic.

As moms savor their children's presents on Mother's Day, Sunday, May 11, we offer a guide to TV's hottest male characters to help them through the other 364 days.

This is no slight against stalwart husbands. It's just an acknowledgment that woman does not live by domesticity alone - and a reminder that some perfect specimens of the male species are but a click of the remote away.

Dr. Luka Kovac: If you have to be rushed to the emergency room, wouldn't it be therapeutic to get a doctor who looks like Luka Kovac on NBC's "ER"? Granted, the character is a bit of a brooder, with those deep green eyes often focused on painful memories. But dark moods can be alluring when combined with seductive good looks and a self-indulgent wild streak.

One thing is certain about the actor who plays him: Goran Visnjic is not a man who primps. Rather, the 30-year-old Croatian finds being handsome a bit of a bother. "People say 'a hunk' or 'good-looking,'" he says, shrugging his broad shoulders. "I didn't work for that. It is what nature gave me, what my parents gave me." And fans of "ER" are thankful.

Spike: The platinum blond 'do on Spike of UPN's "Buffy the Vampire Slayer" might not grab all women, but look again. This leather-clad vamp sports abs to die for and cheekbones as sharp as stakes.

James Marsters, 40, infuses Spike with enough cocky Britpunk charm to make even the most buttoned-down preppie long for a bite. With his restored soul, add a layer of tenderness and regret to that bad-boy vibe and you've got a combination that would turn any slayer's head.

Remember that controversial episode when he and Buffy consummated their affair? The earth really did move - a building even came down. If all that were not enough, this former poet understands our heroine. After all, not everyone can relate to being undead among the living.

Clark Kent: Our young hero, also of two worlds, could send mere mortals into orbit with his all-American appeal. Played by Tom Welling, 26, Clark Kent of The WB Network's "Smallville" embodies all that is good. As Superman, he fights for truth, justice and the American way, and is darn cute in primary colors while doing it (how does he get those teeth so white?).

With his superhero physique and down-home demeanor, Clark could be just the Man of Steel younger moms want to spend an hour watching, and more mature moms may find themselves humming "Mrs. Robinson."

Bill Sterling: The quiet strength that Clark Kent exudes also is seen in U.S. Senator Bill Sterling on NBC's "Mister Sterling." Played by Josh Brolin, 35, Sterling is confident without being arrogant, committed without coming off like a fanatic. He also, frankly, has a pretty well-built body politic.

Throw in the fact that the man actually is ethical and he becomes irresistible. Sure, there are other idealistic pols on television, but they tend toward bombastic self-righteousness (if they do remember to bring flowers, they're accompanied by a lecture on pesticide legislation). Part of Sterling's he-man attraction is that he just simply is.

On Fox's Tuesday espionage drama "24," vulnerability and a tragic past make Jack Bauer (Kiefer Sutherland) even more appealing to female viewers.

Van Ray: This undercover cop sports leather pants, zips about in flashy sports cars and engages in bare-chested gunfights on Fox's flashy freshman drama "Fastlane."

Peter Facinelli, 29, who plays Ray, keeps toned by doing yoga. That's a good thing, considering how often he sheds his shirt.

As the actor has said, "We are dipped in fantasy. We don't have that 'Law & Order' heaviness."

And besides, Van's got that sensitive side - and Facinelli's smile.

Prickly 'Scrubs' doc a real softy at heart

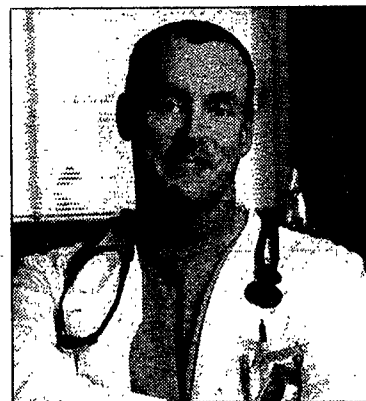

By Taylor Michaels
© Zap2it

Q What can you tell me about the hunky actor who plays Dr. Perry Cox on "Scrubs"? And where can I write to him? -Karla Fields, Orient, Ohio.

A A native of New York's Greenwich Village, lanky character actor John C. McGinley developed his love for acting while studying at New York University, where he earned a Master of Fine Arts from the university's prestigious theater school.

After getting his big break taking over for John Turturro in a New York stage production of "Danny and the Deep Blue Sea," McGinley went on to a series of other productions both on and off Broadway.

His versatility in films (more than 50 of them, including the upcoming "Identity") and TV movies is well-known, especially his knack for putting unpredictable spins on his lines, as in the smash TV adaptation of Dean Koontz's thriller "Intensity." Other film credits include "Seven," "Office Space," "The Rock," "Stealing Harvard," "Any Given Sunday," "Platoon" and "Wall Street."

John C. McGinley

The 43-year-old divorced actor shares his Los Angeles home with his young son who has Down syndrome, and works tirelessly to support programs aimed at building awareness and acceptance of people who share that condition.

McGinley sees his testy "Scrubs" character as "an archetypal descendant of two of my favorite curmudgeonly characters, Lou Grant and Lou De Palma," but series creator Bill Lawrence actually styled Dr. Perry Cox after his own father-in-law and also his former high-school English teacher, who was, in fact, named Mr. Cox.

Write to McGinley c/o "Scrubs," Touchstone Television, 500 S. Buena Vista St., Burbank, CA 91521.

Q What was the name of the series starring Ralph Waite as an attorney who traveled up and down the Mississippi on an old riverboat? -Glenn Crawford via e-mail.

A Filmed entirely on location, the 1983-84 CBS legal drama "The Mississippi" starred a post-"Waltons" Waite as Ben Walker, a driven, high-powered criminal attorney who traded in his frantic career in favor of a more leisurely pace on a stern-wheel river tug he purchased. Ben tackled tough legal cases in every port he visited, assisted by former client Stella McMullen (Linda G. Miller) and Vietnam vet Lefe Tate (Stan Shaw), who did most of Ben's legwork.

The sun sets on 'Dawson's Creek' with WB series finale

By Jay Bobbin
© Zap2it

Where will the gang from "Dawson's Creek" be five years from now?

You don't have to wait for a reunion movie to find out. The answer is built into The WB Network drama's two-hour finale, co-written by series creator Kevin Williamson and airing Wednesday, May 14.

The young characters from Cape-side, Mass., have done a lot of growing up over the show's six seasons, yet some things have remained the same - especially the complexities of Joey Potter's (Katie Holmes) relationships with two of her childhood friends, Dawson Leery and Pacey Witter (James Van Der Beek, Joshua Jackson).

Those relationships intensify in the finale as the trio gathers in Cape-side, along with their comrades Jen Lindley and Jack McPhee (Michelle Williams, Kerr Smith), for the wedding of Dawson's widowed mother (Mary-Margaret Humes). The occasion is meant to be joyous, but tragedy lies ahead: Reportedly, the death of one of the show's central characters is part of the plot. Jeremy Sisto ("Six Feet Under") and Virginia Madsen ("Dune") guest star.

"I can't tell you how nice it is," co-star Jackson says of having writer-producer Williamson back for the series' wrap-up. "Because the show is so personal to him, and there's such a joy and a love he brings into his writing, I think it's a perfect way for us to end. The timing is right, certainly; six seasons is a very long run, and I think we have told our story. There's something wonderful and nostalgic about being able to say goodbye properly. A lot of TV shows get to the end of their seasons and are canceled a month later."

As "Dawson's Creek" comes to its end, reminders of its roots include a DVD set of first-season episodes and repeats each weekday morning on TBS. "Not to sound like a sap - actually, I'm in a nostalgic mode, so I will sound sappy - it's nice to remember why we cared in the beginning," reflects Jackson, who adds he had no expectations for the show when it debuted in the winter of 1998, despite the "buzz" that surrounded it.

"I was too green to the television business to even know what I was supposed to be thinking," he muses. "It was the first time I'd been in Los Angeles for pilot season, and this was the first pilot I'd ever done. I went back to my hometown of Vancouver and honestly didn't think about it that much until I got the call (that the series had been picked up), and all of a sudden, I was very busy. We filmed the entire first season before the first episode went on the air, then the show took off. Now I know what a crapshoot it is and how unbelievably lucky we were."

Jackson has been immersed totally in the "Dawson's Creek" saga while making the series on location in Wilmington, N.C. "The upside to working on a TV show," he says, "is that you have an expanded story to tell, so I was very attached to the characters, maybe a little too much sometimes. As worried as I was about how the end of the show would be, I think we're being allowed to go out with smiles on our faces, and that's important. I want to feel like we're leaving these characters in a good place from which they can go out and live their lives."

Caustic yet romantic, Pacey gets the makings of his future in the last episode. Jackson surmises his alter ego would have "one of two lives: He would either go out and live loud and do fantastic things - though he has already done some by the tender age of 20, sailing around the Caribbean, running a restaurant and working as a stockbroker - or he would give up on himself and end up back in Capeside. I'd like to believe it's the first."

"Dawson's Creek" gave Jackson his first chance to direct with a recent episode involving the relationship show "Lovelace" and its hosts, Dr. Drew Pinsky and Adam Carolla. (TBS is scheduled to repeat it Tuesday, May 13.) "It was an eye-opening experience," Jackson says, "a whole new discipline for me to try to learn, and in my not-so-humble opinion, I think it went really well. The actors really came through for me, and as for the show's crew, I couldn't have asked for a more supportive environment. I always noticed how difficult it was for a director just coming into our show to learn the shorthand we'd developed by working together for so long. That hurdle was already cleared for me."

Katie Holmes, James Van Der Beek, Michelle Williams and Joshua Jackson (from left) bid farewell to one another as their drama series "Dawson's Creek" ends its run Wednesday on The WB Network.

Throughout the run of "Dawson's Creek," Jackson rarely gave himself a break from acting, making such movies as "Cruel Intentions," "Scream 2" and "The Skulls" during hiatus periods (or, in some cases, concurrently with the series). Now he says, it's time for a rest.

"I love what I do for a living," he says. "There are just so many rewards for me in being on a set."

There's nothing like that feeling of being in the middle of a scene and having it go well...It's a narcotic, but in a perfect world, I can now take six months off and not be an actor for a while. I just want to spend some time back in Vancouver, which I haven't had nearly enough time to do, and reintroduce myself to my life outside 'Dawson's Creek.'"

Daytime actors prepare to steady awards-show nerves

Attending a high-profile awards show can be nerve-wracking. From walking along the red carpet in teetering heels to worrying about your game face if your name isn't called as a winner, there's a lot to think about when it comes to getting ready for these televised competitions.

ABC's "30th Annual Daytime Emmy Awards," which airs Friday, May 16, is no exception. Daytime actors, talk-show hosts, directors, producers, writers and other crew members will trek up the red carpet leading to New York's Radio City Music Hall. All of them hope to be big winners and not trip on their dresses or shoelaces.

Jordi Vilasuso (Tony Santos, "Guiding Light"), who is nominated for the outstanding younger actor award, is taking a more relaxed approach to this year's events. "I was so nervous last time that my friends, who watched the show, told me I looked sick," Vilasuso says. "I've decided you can't practice a game face or you come off looking bad. But it is something that you think about. So, I'm going to try smiling when they call my name and maybe doing a 'Hi, Grandma' wave."

As for tripping on the carpet, "Well, if it happens, it happens," laughs the actor. "I'm sure there will be lots of great pictures of me flat on my face. Last year, I had my camera and took pictures of the press taking pictures of me. It made that whole red carpet thing a lot more fun. If you worry too much, you lose the point of the night, which is to celebrate."

To stave off those award-night jitters, "Port Charles" actress Kelly Monaco is making Emmy Day a family affair.

"All four of my sisters and my parents will be there, so I'm spending the afternoon with them," Monaco says. "It's been awhile since we've all been together, so it's a really special experience for my family."

First-time nominee Chad Brannon (Xander Smith, "General Hospital") is taking his mom and girlfriend to the event. "I know I'm going to be nervous all day. I asked Steve (Burton, Jason Quartermaine) and Maurice (Benard, Sonny Corinthos) what is it like and what I should expect when I get there. They both told me to pray I just didn't throw up. I was like, man, why couldn't they have just lied to me and told me to enjoy every minute? Steve told me he heard his name called when he won and he doesn't remember anything after that."

The Daytime Emmys have gone through a major overhaul in the voting process. Ron Raines (Alan Spaulding, "GL"), who is nominated for an outstanding supporting actor award, is pleased with the new streamlined system.

"Our colleagues here at 'GL' voted on us in-house," Raines explains. "That happened on all of the daytime soaps. If you won that round, then you submitted a tape, which was viewed by a panel of judges and voted on. The judges pick the winners."

"It wasn't like the photo thing from the past where everyone's picture was put in a big book and you checked off the ones you wanted to vote on," he continues. "This year, people viewed our work. I like the fact that it had nothing to do with popularity, but it was people who sat down and watched what you were doing this last year. That, to me, is encouraging, and now I'm just going to go along for the party. Of course, I'll be borrowing a tux from the wardrobe of the show because Alan dresses better than I do."

Sports Feature

X Games go international with global championships

By George Dickie
© Zap2it

The term "X Games" tends to conjure images of airborne skateboarders, spinning BMX cyclists and speeding snowboarders.

It also calls to mind images of United States athletes competing on U.S. soil.

But action sports are becoming big overseas, and viewers will be able to bear witness to their international influence starting this week when the X Games Global Championships air on ABC, ESPN and ESPN2, Saturday, May 17, through Saturday, May 24.

The first-ever event features teams representing the United States, Canada, Europe, South America, Asia and Australia competing in 11 winter and summer events from six sports categories: skateboarding (vert and park), BMX bike stunt (vert and park), moto-X (freestyle), aggressive in-line skating (vert and park), snowboarding (women's and men's superpipe) and skiing (women's and men's superpipe).

Taped May 16-18, the summer events take place at the Alamodome in San Antonio, with the winter sports coming from the Whistler Blackcomb Mountain Resort in Whistler, B.C.

Athletes whom American fans know, such as Dave Mirra, Ryan Nyquist, Bucky Lasek and Kelly Clark, will be competing against foreign athletes whom they likely don't recognize, such as Japanese in-line skater Ken Kitada, Australian skate-boarder Chad Bartie and Chilean snowboarder Fraz Baehr.

Raising U.S. awareness of how these sports are taking hold overseas is one important aspect of these games, notes Sal Masekela, the host of the telecasts. "I don't know how much people really appreciate the international factor of the action-sports athlete. And for the most part, I think at the X Games you have most of the big gold-medal winners, a lot of them being from here. So I think putting them all on the same plane from different countries, I think people are going to be able to really root for underdogs in a really cool way. I think it's going to open people's eyes to the fact that this is not just some American fad, but that this is a very global movement of sport that is taking charge with youth around the world, be it Asia, Europe, Australia, South America, etc."

Given the Americans' long history with action sports, Masekela feels that they have to be considered the heavy favorites. "We, pretty much, are not disadvantaged in any discipline," he says. "Skateboarding, we have a lock - some of the best vert guys in the world. Most of the top-10 vert guys live here. BMX, you've got Dave Mirra - the cream of the crop. Snowboarding, Shaun White, Todd Richards - just cream of the crop. ... And then, freestyle moto-X is another one that America just has sewn up. But this is where it was born."

"But while we do have the cream of the crop in those areas," Masekela says, "we get stiff competition in BMX, especially, and skateboarding from Canada, our neighbors to the north. And in snowboarding, we get very strong competition from our neighbors to the north. Then you have like, on the Euro team, Rune Glifberg, who's a Scandinavian, is one of the best vert skaters in the world, along with Mathias Ringstrom. I mean, it's not going to be like a walk in the park for America, which is great, because that's never fun. Even when you watch the Olympics, it's never fun to watch us just be able to just mow people down."

And it's likely the U.S. team will get mowed down in some categories, such as in-line skating, which Masekela thinks is the strength of the Asian team. "Just give them the gold and silver now," he says. "Just mail it to them now because they have these two kids, the Yasutoko brothers, that are just - and I'm not a real gigantic fan of in-line, but you watch these kids and you're just like, 'Next level, next level.' They, singlehandedly, have taken the respect level that (in-line skating) wasn't getting from a lot of the other sports, and everyone agrees - BMX-ers, skateboarders, etc. - that these kids are ridiculously gifted."

Some teams will have strengths in surprising areas, such as the Australians. "There's a girl from down there - she's only 16 - her name is Torah Bright," Masekela says, "and she is probably the future of women's snowboarding."

"Boston Red Sox at Minnesota Twins" Sunday, May 11 (ESPN, 8 p.m. ET): It's the same old story: The Boston Red Sox are playing well, but the New York Yankees are playing better, so the Sox once again are sitting in second place in the American League East. The same cannot be said for Boston's opponents tonight, the Minnesota Twins. Mediocre pitching and poor run production have dropped the defending AL Central champs to the middle of their division, well behind the Chicago White Sox and surprising Kansas City Royals.

"Byron Nelson Classic, First Round" Thursday, May 15 (USA Network, 4 p.m. ET): Shigeki Maruyama became the first Asian with more than one victory on the PGA Tour when he fended off late charges from Tiger Woods and rookie Ben Crane to register a two-stroke triumph in last year's Byron Nelson Classic. He'll be back at the Cottonwood Golf Club in Irving, Texas, to defend his title against Crane, Ernie Els, Phil Mickelson and Vijay Singh, but not Woods, who has committed to the Deutsche Bank-SAP Open in Germany.

"Preakness Stakes" Saturday, May 17 (NBC, 5 p.m. ET): The hope every year in the Preakness Stakes is that the horse that finishes first in the Kentucky Derby (whose winner was not known at press time) will repeat that feat at Pimlico, thereby setting up an ultra-hyped Belmont with Triple Crown potential. We're getting ahead of ourselves, of course, just as Empire Maker jumped ahead of the field in winning both the Florida Derby and Wood Memorial, prepping the colt for a possible run at glory.

Nova

The canals of Venice, Italy, draw a lot of tourists — and their money — every year, but the balance between the city and the water running through it is a delicate one. "Sinking City of Venice" examines how rising sea levels and

8 p.m. on 19-PBS

Warrior Challenge

The four-part "hands-on history" series follows British and United States soldiers, police officers, and the odd polo player and archaeologist as they take on the challenge of fighting as medieval knights, Vikings, Roman soldiers and gladiators. Along the way, they learn how modern skills do and do not contribute to their survival in past ages.

Deep Salvage

On Feb. 9, 2001, USS Greenville, a United States nuclear submarine, accidentally rammed and sank the Japanese fishing trawler Ehime Maru, which was used as a floating classroom to teach students about deep-sea fishing. This documentary recounts efforts to raise the trawler from its resting place 2,000 feet down, so that the bodies of the deceased could be returned to their loved ones.

Sunday Best Bets

6 p.m. on 26-ABC on 13-ABC
Movie: E.T. the Extra-Terrestrial

A boy named Elliott (Henry Thomas) attempts to help a stranded alien "phone home" and return to his planet in director Steven Spielberg's touching 1982 fantasy. An Oscar went to composer John Williams, a frequent Spielberg collaborator, for a score that soars — just like the movie's bike-riding youngsters. Dee Wallace, Peter Coyote, Robert MacNaughton and Drew Barrymore co-star.

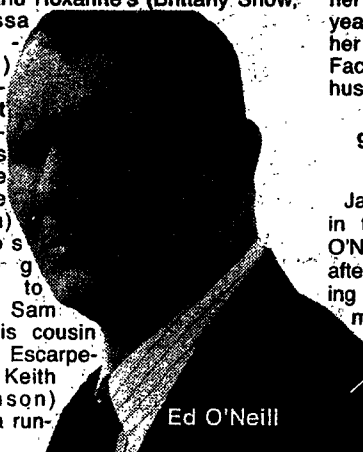

7 p.m. on 38-WB
Charmed

The Halliwell sisters are swept into Greek mythology as the series ends its fifth season with the two-hour episode "Oh My Goddess." The witches are caught in the battle between long-imprisoned gods and their captors, known as Elders. After the siblings have a close call, Leo (Brian Krause) turns them into Greek goddesses with the ability to defeat the enemies. However, Leo's move may take him away from Piper (Holly Marie Combs).

7 p.m. on 6-NBC
American Dreams

JJ (Will Estes) ends the summer by training to play college football in the new episode "High Hopes," but his ankle starts bothering him again. Meg and Roxanne's (Brittany Snow, Vanessa Leno) falling out continues as Luke (Jamie Elman) helps Meg learn to drive. Sam and his cousin (Arlen Escapeta, Keith Robinson) have a run-in with police after a curfew is established in northern Philadelphia.

Ed O'Neill

7 p.m. and BRAV
Inside the Actors Studio

Host James Lipton interviews show-business icon Joanne Woodward — alias Mrs. Paul Newman — in this new episode. The actress discusses her ties to the Actors Studio over the years, as well as her preparation for her Oscar-winning role in "The Three Faces of Eve" and working when her husband is directing her.

9 p.m. on 26-ABC on 13-ABC
Dagnet

Jack Webb never would have been in this position: Joe Friday's (Ed O'Neill) career hangs in the balance after he kills a fellow cop while protecting an innocent man in the police drama's season finale, "The Little Guy." He prepares to be interrogated by a review board, which will decide whether the murder was accidental. Raymond J. Barry and Mercedes Colon guest star.

Nothing can rain on Raines' parade

By Candace Havens
© Zap2it

For years, "Guiding Light" fans believed Alan Spaulding, played by Ron Raines, was insane. Now, the character is beginning to wonder if it's true. Alan has taken a big dive off the deep end of the crazy pool, and Raines is enjoying every minute.

"I love where Alan's going, because he's going nuts," Raines enthuses. "It's so much fun to play. They are really writing me all over the place, which is great. He's being drugged, so he's delusional. Then, he starts to think he's losing it and he becomes paranoid. He's really going crazy."

Alan is the villain everyone loves to hate. He meddles in the lives of his family and manipulates anyone who crosses his path.

Many viewers are happy about Alan getting what he deserves. But Raines says they may see something different in Alan by the time the story line comes to a close.

"I think a lot of the people who have issues, as well they should, are going to find themselves feeling a little sorry for this man."

Raines is nominated for a Daytime Emmy for outstanding supporting actor, and he admits he was surprised by the honor.

"The morning the nominations were announced, my daughter was sick, so I was at the doctor's office with her," he says. "One of our friends called and told my wife, and she called me at the doctor's office. I had no idea what was going on. I was very happy and shocked."

Raines has no problem sharing the category with co-star Paul Anthony Stewart (Danny Santos).

"It isn't difficult, not for me and Paul," Raines says. "I think it's great when two people from the show are nominated. It gives the show a better chance to land one."

Dear Candace: I'm a big fan of "All My Children." I love Maria and Aidan (Eva LaRue, Aiden Turner) together. I don't want them to put Maria back with Edmund (John Callahan). Please tell me that isn't going to happen. -T.B. via the Internet.

Dear Reader: For every fan who wants Maria and Aidan to stay together, there are two more who want her back with Edmund.

Wednesday Best Bets

7 p.m. on 8-FOX on 25-FOX

That '70s Show

The rivalry between Kelsey and Hyde (Ashton Kutcher, Danny Masterson) for Jackie (Mila Kunis) rages on as the comedy ends its fifth season with "Celebration Day." Eric and Donna (Topher Grace, Laura Prepon) realize they've crossed an age threshold. Fez (Wilmer Valderrama) tries to avoid deportation. Red (Kurtwood Smith) tells football legend Joe Theismann, who plays himself, how much he anticipates having a childless household.

7 p.m. on 38-WB

Dawson's Creek

Most series wait a few years before regathering their casts for reunion shows, but this drama builds its reunion right into its two-hour finale. The episode is set five years in the future, when Dawson, Joey, Pacey, Jen and Jack (James Van Der Beek, Katie Holmes, Joshua Jackson, Michelle Williams, Kerr Smith) reunite in Cape-side for a wedding.

7 p.m. on 19-PBS

Peter and Paul and the Christian Revolution

The efforts by two of religion's most legendary figures to establish a new form of faith are traced in this miniseries, which merges scholarly views with dramatic re-creations filmed in Europe and the Middle East. In Part 1, "The Rock and the River," Peter keeps believers in Jesus united, with Paul eventually joining in and spreading the news of their new religion throughout the Roman Empire.

7 p.m. and DSC

Deep Salvage

The story of a fishing trawler accidentally struck by an American nuclear submarine in the Pacific Ocean made international headlines in February 2001. This new special recalls the mission to retrieve the bodies of everyone aboard the Ehime Maru — including Japanese students — when it was hit. The remains of the boat and its passengers sank to a depth below 2,000 feet, leading to the deepest undersea salvage effort.

7:30 p.m. on 8-FOX on 25-FOX

American Idol

By the end of this hour, the nation will know which two aspiring music stars survived the initial auditions and numerous elimination rounds to qualify for next week's finals. Three hopefuls will be on hand at the start of this show, but based on the previous night's voting by viewers, only two will continue on. The stage will then be set for one of them to succeed last year's winner, Kelly Clarkson. Ryan Seacrest is the host.

8 p.m. on 26-ABC on 13-ABC

The Bachelor: The Women Tell All

As with the previous editions of the reality series, a new pre-finale special reunites the 23 candidates who didn't reach the final two slots. They dish furiously, and often wickedly, about the man who cut them loose — in this case, Andrew Firestone of the wealthy tire-company family. The women who definitely won't be getting the last rose from him spill their feelings to host Chris Harrison.

8 p.m. on 6-NBC

The West Wing

The president (Martin Sheen) has to divert his attention from his daughter's (Elisabeth Moss) graduation to a threat against America as the drama series closes its fourth season with "25." Washington, D.C., is shut down and military forces are sent to the Persian Gulf. The events of the day pivotally impact all White House staff members including Toby (Richard Schiff), who still tries to celebrate a personal triumph.

8:30 p.m. on 8-FOX on 25-FOX

The Bernie Mac Show

Jordan (Jeremy Suarez) may end up with the best birthday party ever — if Bernie (Bernie Mac) has his way.

— in "For a Few Dollars More," the comedy's second-season finale. Another youngster's party is set for the same day, bringing out Bernie's competitive spirit and making him determined to give Jordan the birthday bash to end all birthday bashes.

9 p.m. on 6-NBC

Law & Order

Manhattanites fall victim to a sniper who fires at random in the new episode "Sheltered." Briscoe and Green (Jerry Orbach, Jesse L. Martin) try to ward off mass panic by finding the shooter quickly. Evidence suggests that the trigger-puller is a former Marine. Once a suspect is in custody, McCoy and Southern (Sam Waterston, Elisabeth Rohm) get a big surprise as they try to make their case.

Friday Best Bets

7 p.m. on 26-ABC on 13-ABC
The 30th Annual Daytime Emmy Awards

The stars of the morning and afternoon hours come out at night for this yearly ceremony, presented from Radio City Music Hall in New York. Part of the fun is in watching some of them cringe during digests of the past year on their respective shows, with all of the romance and action seeming to move at warp speed. Wayne Brady, whose syndicated variety-talk show is up for four of the honors, serves as host.

7 p.m. on 38-WB

Celebrity Look-Alike Show

People frequently mistaken for famous personalities get the chance to make the resemblances pay off in this new special, which features doubles for Jennifer Lopez, Ben Affleck, Britney Spears and Justin Timberlake. Celebrity judges and audience members gauge just how effective the look-alikes are, and big rewards — including a weekend in Las Vegas — await the winners. Godfrey is the host.

7 p.m. on 54-UPN

Movie: Interview With the Vampire

Anne Rice wrote the screenplay for this 1994 drama based on her novel. Tom Cruise, Brad Pitt and Christian Slater star in the tale of a brooding 200-year-old vampire who never came to terms with, his supernatural existence. He consoles himself by telling his story to a journalist.

Wayne Brady

8 p.m. on 38-WB

The WB's Outrageous Outtakes

They're young, they're attractive — and they make flubs in front of the cameras, just like many other actors. This special compiles gaffes by stars of The WB Network series such as "Smallville," "Everwood" and "Angel." Christopher Rich and Melissa Peterman, who play spouses Brock and Barbara Jean on the sitcom "Reba," are the hosts.

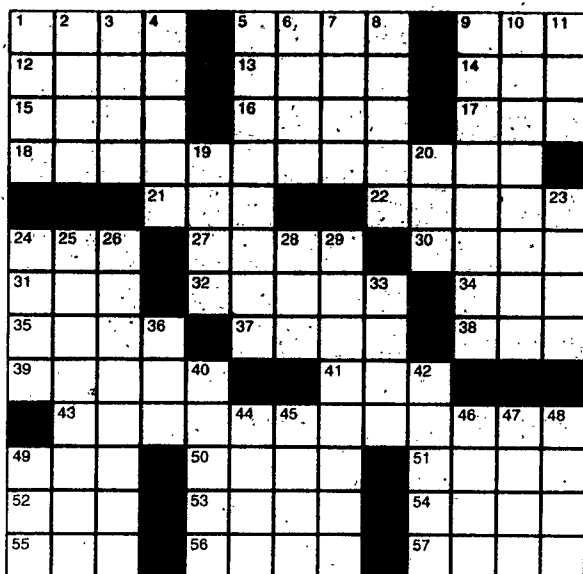

8 p.m. on 6-NBC

Law & Order: Special Victims Unit

Benson and Stabler (Mariska Hargitay, Christopher Meloni) use DNA evidence to find the rapist responsible for impregnating a hospitalized coma victim in "Waste." The police detectives suspect her doctor (Bruce Davison) may have more than a medical role in the situation, since he tries to abort the child. JoBeth Williams ("The Big Chill") guest stars as the comatose woman's mother.

Saturday Best Bets

4 p.m. on 6-NBC Horse Racing

The hope every year in the Preakness Stakes is that the horse that finishes first in the Kentucky Derby (whose winner was not known at press time) will repeat that feat at Pimlico, thereby setting up an ultrahyped Belmont with Triple Crown potential. We're getting ahead of ourselves, of course, just as Empire Maker jumped ahead of the field in winning both the Florida Derby and Wood Memorial, prepping the colt for a possible run at glory.

6 p.m. on FAM

Movie: City Slickers

Three friends (Billy Crystal, Daniel Stern, Bruno Kirby) battle their midlife crises by spending two weeks on a cattle drive out West. Along the way, they learn a little about cowboy life and a lot about life in general. Jack Palance won an Oscar and a Golden Globe for his portrayal of Curly, the trail boss, in this warm-hearted 1991 comedy. Helen Slater and Patricia Wettig also star.

6 p.m. on USA

Movie: The Nutty Professor

Eddie Murphy stretches his acting muscles in this 1996 remake of the Jerry Lewis classic. He plays several roles in addition to the title character, an overweight chemist who invents a formula that transforms him into the slim but smarmy Buddy Love. Jada Pinkett co-stars as the object of his affection. The film won an Oscar for makeup.

7 p.m. on 6-NBC

Hunter

A Marine superior is killed at home in the new episode "Need to Know," prompting Hunter and McCall (Fred Dryer, Stephanie Kramer) to investigate subordinate officers who may have held a grudge against the victim. Complicating the probe is the reluctance of military higher-ups to assist the police detectives. Hunter's refusal to back off makes him the murderer's next target.

7 p.m. on HBO

Movie: Enough

Jennifer Lopez strikes a blow — actually, quite a few blows — for female empowerment in this 2002 melodrama from director Michael Apted ("The World Is Not Enough"). The actress-singer plays a wife and mother whose marriage to a seemingly ideal man (Bill Campbell, "Once and Again") crumbles when he shows his abusive side. She runs away with their daughter (Tessa Allen), but he follows, prompting her to learn self-defense.

8 p.m. on 4-CBS

The District

Suddenly jobless, Mannion (Craig T. Nelson) — who continues to mourn the death of Ella (the late Lynne Thigpen) — seems to have wide-open options as the police drama ends its third season with "Into the Sunset." The course he decides to follow becomes clearer as he helps a policeman track down a drug kingpin and several corrupt cops in Arizona. Jean Smart and Jaclyn Smith reprise their earlier guest roles.

8 p.m. on 6-NBC

Law & Order

An off-duty policewoman is shot, causing Briscoe and Green (Jerry Orbach, Jesse L. Martin) to fear her assailant was targeting anyone in a cop's uniform, in "Suicide Box." The investigation reveals she deliberately was targeted because of her link to a black man's murder. Gregory Hines guest stars as an attorney who plays to — or simply plays — the media while representing the defendant.

9 p.m. on 4-CBS

The Agency

After Terri (Paige Turco) is kidnapped while seeking the identity of a mole within the CIA, Stiles (Jason O'Mara) sets out to save her in "Our Man in Washington," the episode that closes the drama series' second year. The attempted rescue becomes so complicated that Stiles may have to risk both his life and Terri's to get them out alive. Haisley (Will Patton) thinks Joshua (David Clennon) is the traitor.

9 p.m. on 6-NBC

Law & Order: Special Victims Unit

Assistant District Attorney Cabot (Stephanie March) oversteps her bounds trying to convict a serial child molester (Beau Gravitte) in "Guilt." She involves Benson and Stabler (Mariska Hargitay, Christopher Meloni) in an illegal search of a young victim's home, prompting the SVU bureau chief (Judith Light) to step in and reprimand Cabot.

(Ratings for each film begin with a "star" rating - one star meaning "poor," four meaning "excellent" - followed by the Motion Picture Association of America rating, and then by a family-viewing guide, the key for which appears below.)

STARTING THIS WEEK (New releases):

"ANALYZE THAT": If you saw Robert De Niro and Billy Crystal's previous comedy "Analyze This," you've pretty much seen this sequel, which puts De Niro's newly paroled gangster character into the care of his reluctant psychiatrist (Crystal). Still, there are chuckles to be had as the ex-convict becomes a consultant to a "Sopranos"-like TV series. Lisa Kudrow and Joe Viterelli also return. (R: AS, P, V)

"THE HOT CHICK": Rob Schneider as a woman ... for fans of the "Saturday Night Live" alum, this 2002 comedy was obviously a welcome development. All others, however, probably sought other forms of entertainment. Schneider plays the male incarnation of a female teenager (Rachel McAdams) who's as mean as she is beautiful - setting her up for cosmic justice. Adam Sandler has a cameo. ** (PG-13: AS, P)

"COMEDIAN": What has made Jerry Seinfeld the comedy superstar he is? He tries analyzing it himself in this involving documentary, which juxtaposes a profile of him with one of aspiring comic Omy Adams. Both men are seen preparing their respective acts and performing them for audiences. Fellow comedians Bill Cosby, Chris Rock, Ray Romano and Jay Leno also are seen. *** (R: P)

"EQUILIBRIUM": World War III survivors take a drug that robs them of emotion - and, therefore, any impetus for violent acts - in an intriguing science-fiction thriller directed by screenwriter Kurt Wimmer ("The Recruit"). Christian Bale ("American Psycho") plays a government man who realizes how much he has missed when he forgets to take the drug, then tries to get the chemical outlawed. Emily Watson, Taye Diggs and Sean Bean co-star. *** (R: AS, P, V)

"KISS ME KATE": Cole Porter's musical classic gets a fresh, refreshing workout in director Michael Blakemore's staging, taped at the Victoria Palace Theatre in London (and televised earlier this year by PBS). Two performers, played by Brent Barrett and Rachel York, mirror the volatile relationship that their characters have in a production of Shakespeare's "The Taming of the Shrew." The score includes "Too Damn Hot" and "Another Op'nin', Another Show."

"COPENHAGEN": Michael Frayn's Tony Award-winning play came to TV last year in this superbly acted "PBS Hollywood Presents" offering: Stephen Rea ("The Crying Game") and Daniel Craig ("Road to Perdition") play physicists Niels Bohr and Werner Heisenberg, former colleagues on opposing sides of the atomic-bomb issue during World War II. Their meeting in Denmark has implications for the entire world. Francesca Annis co-stars as Bohr's wife. (Not rated: AS, P)

COMING SOON (Upcoming releases):

"ADAPTATION" (May 20): Nicolas Cage has dual roles as a screenwriter plagued by both a creative block and his twin brother, a fellow writer who enjoys great success. (R: AS, P)

"ANTWONE FISHER" (May 20): Denzel Washington makes his directing debut with this true drama, in which he plays a Navy man's (Derek Luke) psychiatrist. (PG-13: AS, P, V)

"STAR TREK: NEMESIS" (May 20): Capt. Jean-Luc Picard (Patrick Stewart) faces a sinister clone, among other perils, in the latest "Next Generation" mission. (PG-13: P, V)

"20,000 LEAGUES UNDER THE SEA" (May 20): The Walt Disney version of Jules Verne's classic adventure story, starring Kirk Douglas and James Mason, makes its DVD debut. (G)

"A GUY THING" (May 27): An engaged man (Jason Lee) has a fling with a free spirit (Julia Stiles) who turns out to be the cousin of his fiancée (Selma Blair). (PG-13: AS, P)

"THE PIANIST" (May 27): Director Roman Polanski and star Adrien Brody earned Academy Awards for this drama about a Polish-Jewish musician during World War II. (R: AS, P, V)

"THE RECRUIT" (May 27): A CIA agent-in-training (Colin Farrell) gets quick career advancement by helping his boss (Al Pacino) find a traitor within the agency. (PG-13: AS, P, V)

OLDIES BUT GOODIES

If your local video store is fresh out of new releases, give these a look:

"ANALYZE THIS" (1999): A mild-mannered psychiatrist (Billy Crystal) isn't sure he wants to take on a volatile mobster (Robert De Niro) as a new patient. **

"MYRA BRECKINRIDGE" (1970): Best taken as absolute camp, this adaptation of the Gore Vidal novel converts a man (Rex Reed) into a woman (Raquel Welch). **

"PUNCHLINE" (1988): Sally Field and Tom Hanks play comedy-club performers who develop a personal attachment while trying to establish their careers. ***

New NBC movie knocks on the door of 'Three's Company'

"Batman," "Gilligan's Island" and "The Brady Bunch" inspired behind-the-scenes movies. Now, another TV classic is getting similar treatment.

The 1977-84 comedy hit "Three's Company" made stars of John Ritter, Suzanne Somers and Joyce DeWitt as apartmentmates Jack, Chrissy and Janet, but Somers rocked the boat - and bruised others' feelings - with salary demands that ultimately got her fired. The controversy is recalled in "Behind the Camera: The Unauthorized Story of Three's Company," a new NBC movie airing Monday, May 12. Newcomers Bret Anthony, Jud Tylor and Melanie Deanne Moore play Ritter, Somers and DeWitt, respectively, and the real DeWitt narrates the film.

Co-stars include Brian Dennehy as then-ABC programming chief Fred Silverman, Daniel Roebuck and Michael David Simms as "Three's Company" producers Ted Bergmann and Don Taffner, and Wallace Langham ("The Larry Sanders Show") as former Somers manager Jay Bernstein.

DeWitt, who hasn't spoken with Somers in years, took part in the project to ensure input from someone who knew the real story. "Most of my experience on 'Three's Company' was ridiculously joyful," she says, "and there was a little stuff that was not positive. I have a friend who used to appreciate seeing all these wonderful (characters) on TV doing good things, then some bad person would come in and do something terrible and change the story. She hated that, but, as she got older, she realized that without that person, there would be no story. When I would say, 'Why does everyone focus on the small portion (of the 'Three's Company' days) that was hurtful?' she would say, 'Joycie, there isn't a story without conflict.'"

"The E! True Hollywood Story," among other programs, also has delved into "Three's Company." DeWitt says that after getting a look at the NBC movie's script, "I could have let them go forward and present a version of our lives that was based on their perceptions and press clippings, with no input from anyone who lived through it. I wanted to make sure that the heart of 'Three's Company' got in, how much we loved the show and loved making it. My twofold job was to be a voice for all the people I had worked with and for the heart of the show to be in there. I was willing to battle every day for that and, in fact, I did."

Since Ritter was busy with his ABC series, "8 Simple Rules for Dating My Teenage Daughter," DeWitt felt responsibility for the movie's honesty "really fell to me. Either I'd do it or it wasn't going to happen." Ritter, who won a 1984 Emmy for "Three's Company" and is back in touch with Somers, still kept a vested interest in the movie.

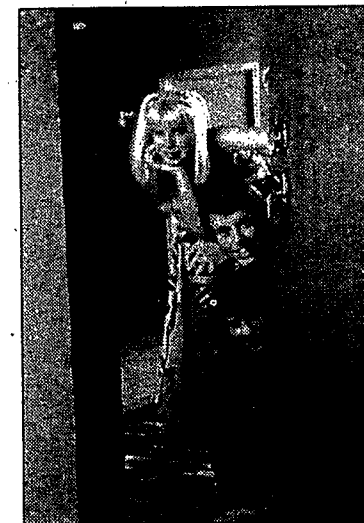

"I had read the script and had a lot of notes on it," he says. "I told the producers, 'I don't think you're going to like some of these.' It was reworked, though, and I love what Joyce says at the end - that regardless of what happened (behind the scenes), doing that kind of comedy and hearing that laughter from the audience was ecstasy for us. We were always loving each other as those characters when we went out on that stage."

"The one thing I don't quite go for in the movie," Ritter adds, "is the stuff about Suzanne and Alan (Hamel, Somers' husband and manager, played by Christopher Shyer). They had their problems with the network and the production company and all that, but how do we know what was said in their bedroom? I thought that was a little cheesy, but, on the whole, the movie is a lot of fun. Brian Dennehy plays Fred Silverman like somebody out of 'Guys and Dolls,' with that kind of Broadway musical-comedy energy."

Seeing someone else portray her didn't strike DeWitt as odd. "This is about a part of my life that is so old to me, watching someone else do that wasn't as weird as if someone were playing me as I am today," she says. "John and I used to watch an assembly of each episode just before it went on the air, and at the end of the second season, I really 'saw' for the first time what I looked like. I had gotten this permanent just before the series went on the air, and I had been so busy watching the work, I hadn't seen how I looked on coast-to-coast TV. In the same way, when I watch this actress play me, I'm not really seeing that. I'm watching her tell a story."

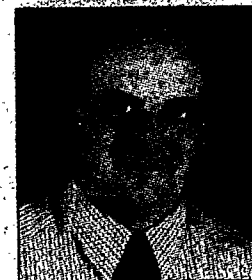

DeWitt appreciates Moore's portrayal of her: "She's a wonderful young woman with real depth of heart and personhood. They did a beautiful job of casting this, and it was a real hunt."

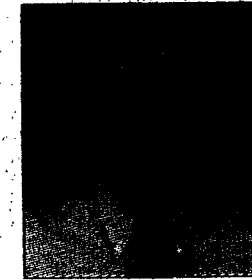

Jud Tylor, Bret Anthony and Melanie Deanne Moore (from top) play Suzanne Somers, John Ritter and Joyce DeWitt in "Behind the Camera: The Unauthorized Story of Three's Company" Monday on NBC.
